motorist
survives
'hanging'

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — John Henry Young, who gave a ride to two hitchhikers and ended up hanging by a rope from a road sign, says he may continue offering rides to hitchhikers despite his unhappy experience.

"I don't know," said Young from his hospital bed. "The way I feel about people ... I've always felt for the need for other people."

Young, 40, is an unemployed mechanic-truck driver from Tyronza, a Northeast Arkansas community of 500.

He was about five miles from his home when he picked up two hitchhikers. Young told authorities the two were smoking something that "didn't smell quite right."

Young said his passengers asked for some rope "to tie their bags up." Then they asked him to buy them a drink. When he said he had no money, one pulled a knife, Young said. He said he stopped the car and they tied his hands and feet and roughed him up. Then, he said, they put a rope around his neck and strung him up to a sign pointing the way to Tyronza. He said he was able to reach the ground with his tiptoes and did so for as long as he could, but then passed out.

"The officer in Tyronza said I hung there maybe 20 minutes or so," he said. "Everytime I moved the rope, it would get tighter. When I knew anything, I was here in the hospital."

"Only God could have done this ... to help me get through and keep going that long," he said.

He was freed by Tyronza Police Chief Chester Ford after a passerby saw him and called the police.

Poinsett County deputies said Sunday no arrest had been made in the case.

Fair skies
follow rare
August rain

Sunshine today and Tuesday is expected to follow today's morning cloudiness left over from a light Sunday rain.

High temperatures today and Tuesday are expected to be 75 with an overnight low of 60.

Rainfall varied from .02 of an inch in Pomona and Montclair to .05 in Claremont. Chino and La Verne both recorded .04.

Sunday, with the high temperature reaching 69 degrees just missed being the coolest Aug. 15 on record in this area. The lowest Aug. 15 maximum was 68.3 in 1962.

Although Southern California got nothing like the rain that drenched other parts of the state — 2.4 inches east of Sacramento and a sudden two-inch cloudburst that caused flooding in Redding — there were sprinkles to light showers in most southern areas Saturday night and Sunday.

Clouds and showers, forecast to continue through Tuesday in the mountains, will be accompanied by winds gusting up to 30 miles per hour. Similar wind velocities are also predicted for the desert areas.

'Sun Belt'
V.P. urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Howard Baker, a potential vice-presidential nominee, said today that President Ford should name a running mate from the so-called Sun Belt of Southern and Western states.

The Tennessee Republican told reporters after a White House meeting with Ford that he does not particularly want the second spot on a Ford ticket, but, if selected, "I certainly would take it."

Baker, frequently mentioned as a possible running mate with Ford, and other congressional leaders met with the President to discuss legislation pending on Capitol Hill.

Arrest W. German, Belgian

Crack plot to steal NATO jet fighter plans

KARLSRUHE, West Germany (AP) — A Belgian and a West German have been arrested in connection with a plot to sell top-secret plans for the new NATO combat jet Tornado to Communist agents, the West German federal prosecutor's office said today.

A German newspaper said the plans for the swing-wing, two-seater plane were obtained from the computers of Messerschmitt-Boelkow-Blohm (MBB), the Munich-based main contractor. The plane is being built for delivery to Britain, Italy and West Germany in the early 1980s.

A spokesman for the prosecutor's office said Valerian Kuzniak, 32, of Belgium was arrested July 26 in Munich. Also arrested on charges of being Kuzniak's accomplice was Manfred Knuefelmann, 36, of West Germany.

Kuzniak intended to pass on a suitcase full of plans for the plane to an unidentified person who was to deliver them to an East Bloc spy agency, the spokesman said. He was asking for about $8 million for the initial delivery and for other plans still to be delivered, the spokesman said.

The plans apparently also were offered to an East Bloc firm for $3 million, the prosecutor's office said.

The spokesman said the prosecutor's office had not previously announced the arrests to avoid endangering the investigation. A story about the arrests published today in the newspaper Die Welt has already caused damage, the spokesman said. He did not elaborate.

The spokesman said the weekly newsmagazine Der Spiegel had refrained from using the story at the request of the prosecutor's office.

The administering company for the construction project is the Munich-based Panavia, 42.5 per cent of which is owned by MBB. British Aircraft Corp. owns an equal amount. Aeritalia owns the remaining 15 per cent.

In Bern, the Swiss government announced the arrest of a retired brigadier of the Swiss army on charges of spying for the Soviet Union. The announcement said Brig. Jean Louis Jeannaire, 66, was suspected of having supplied military information to members of the Soviet Embassy in Bern.

Jeannaire was head of the Swiss anti-air-raid forces before retiring last year. In that position, he was familiar with Switzerland's intricate civil defense network, rated as one of the best in the world.

Chase for delegates intense as GOP convention starts

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — President Ford and Ronald Reagan personally pursued the last uncommitted delegates today while the Republican Party opened its most divided national convention in a generation.

Mary Louise Smith, Republican national chairman, called the 31st GOP National Convention to order in Kemper Arena at 10:30 a.m., CDT.

The start of the convention brought to its final phase the long, sometimes bitter struggle between the incumbent President never tested in a national election and his brash opponent whose challenge defied conventional political wisdom.

Time was running out and the two candidates met with delegations, trying to pry loose the few remaining votes they each needed for the presidential nomination.

Meanwhile, Sen. James L. Buckley of New York, who threatened to enter the race and upset all preconvention calculations, scheduled what his staff described as a "definitive" news conference to announce his intentions.

Many of the Republicans gathered here for the Ford-Reagan showdown feared the outcome would leave the party too divided to withstand the Democratic challenge in the fall campaign.

Additional stories,

Few in Kansas City expected the Republicans to duplicate the show of unity and party harmony the Democrats staged last month in New York City when they nominated Jimmy Carter for president.

Throughout the preconvention week, strategists for Ford and Reagan probed and tested and sought signs of softness in the delegate totals each was claiming.

Both sides claimed to have more than the 1,130 delegate votes needed for the nomination.

The Associated Press delegate count, based on legal commitments and publicly stated preferences, gave Ford 1,116 and Reagan 1,035, with 107 uncommitted. One delegate said he would vote for Buckley as long as the senator was in the race.

In the final hours before the start of the convention, Ford and Reagan each lost one delegate. A Reagan supporter from Louisiana and a Ford backer from New York shifted to the uncommitted column.

For days Buckley stood poised on the edge of the presidential race. The conservative Republican's indecision was one more imponderable in the tightest GOP race since Dwight D. Eisenhower and Robert A. Taft battled for the nomination in 1952.

As Ford crept within a few votes, at least for now, of a first ballot victory, the chances for a second ballot increasingly depended on some fight shaking delegates away from current loyalties or on a breakthrough among uncommitted delegates.

On a second ballot, however, the key states would be North Carolina, Kentucky, Indiana and Michigan. Those states require their delegates to vote in accordance with state primary results for one ballot, but the delegates could vote their personal preferences on a second ballot.

Ford's backers maintain they can offset most of Reagan's expected second-ballot gains, but a vote Sunday in Ford's homestate Michigan delegation casts doubt on those claims, reinforcing the results of the AP delegate survey.

Another big quake
in China

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — U.S. government seismographs recorded a major earthquake today on the Chinese mainland, but geophysicists said it was almost 950 miles away from the great earthquake there last month.

Waverly Person, geophysicist with the National Earthquake Information Service, said the latest tremor measured 6.9 on the Richter scale of earthquake magnitude. It occurred at 10:07 a.m. EDT.

Person said the quake was 250 miles north of Chungking near the Kansu-Szechwan province boundary. On July 27, an earthquake of 8.2 magnitude occurred near China's eastern coast, 937 1/2 miles northeast of today's tremor.

After the July quake and a following strong after-shock, Chinese officials warned residents to expect more large quakes soon. Person said there are no reports of damage or casualties from today's earthquake.

In the Richter scale, every increase of one number, say from magnitude 5.5 to magnitude 6.5, means the ground motion is 10 times greater.

In populated areas, an earthquake of 3.5 on the Richter scale can cause slight damage in the local area, 4 can cause moderate damage, 5 considerable damage, 6 can be severe. A 7 reading is a "major earthquake."

Actor Rod Steiger
leaves hospital

MALIBU (AP) — Actor Rod Steiger left a hospital for his Malibu home to recuperate from heart surgery, a spokesman said.

The 51-year-old actor underwent a cardiac bypass operation Aug. 6 at Daniel Freeman Memorial Hospital in Inglewood.

Hospital officials said Steiger is recovering more quickly than many heart surgery patients. He was released from the suburban Los Angeles hospital on Sunday.

Steiger won an Oscar for his portrayal of a Southern sheriff in the movie, "In the Heat of the Night."

Covina man killed in Baldy accident

A 46-year-old Covina man was killed Sunday afternoon when his car ran off Mt. Baldy Road south of Shinn Road north of Claremont and slammed into a large boulder.

It was the second fatality of the weekend on local highways.

Ted Leonard Salsman of 4625 Coney Ave., Covina, was speeding down Mt. Baldy Road when his car crossed the highway and crashed into a large boulder at the south edge of a dirt turnout.

County Fire Department paramedics said he was dead when they reached the crash scene.

Highway patrol officers reported that the speedometer of the car was stopped at 70 miles an hour.

Meanwhile, Ontario police identified a motorcyclist killed in a Saturday night accident in that city as Raymond W. McCabe Jr. of 4463 San Jose St., Montclair.

Officers arrested Sixto Aragon, 29, of 3813 Riverside Drive, Chino, on manslaughter charges after this accident at Francis Street and Magnolia Avenue at 9 p.m.

Police said that McCabe had stopped his motorcycle at a stop sign on Francis Street about 9 p.m. when a car driven by Aragon failed to stop. Aragon's car pushed Mr. McCabe's motorcycle into a pickup truck driven south on Magnolia Avenue by Larry Dean Mathes of 5983 Portsmouth St., Chino, officers said.

Mathes' truck swerved to avoid hitting the motorcycle and Aragon's vehicle, but Mathes was unable to prevent the collision. The truck then struck an Edison pole, police said.

Officers at the scene said that Aragon failed to respond to questioning at the scene and was transferred to Doctors Hospital in Montclair for an blood alcohol test.

Aragon was arrested after the results of the tests and placed in the West End Jail on charges of manslaughter and felony drunk driving.

A second Mt. Baldy Road accident, this one north of Ice House Canyon Road, sent Esther R. Trevino, 49, of Bell Gardens, to San Antonio Community Hospital with minor injuries Sunday afternoon.

She was a passenger in a southbound car driven by Ray Gutery, 43, also of Bell Gardens. Gutery told highway patrol officers his brakes had gone out and he drove into the side of the mountain to stop his vehicle. Mrs. Trevino was treated at the hospital and released.

A Brea man and his small son were injured slightly Saturday morning when their motorcycle toppled over on a curve and slid 35 feet. The accident occurred on Brea Canyon Cutoff, a mile west of the Orange Freeway, Chino area.

James F. Campbell Sr., 34, and 4-year-old James Jr. were treated for minor injuries at Brea Community Hospital and released.

In another motorcycle accident Saturday, Susan M. Morris, 22, of Fullerton was hurt slightly when her new motorcycle ran off Carbon Canyon Road west of Peyton Drive, Chino area, and fell over. She was treated at Chino General Hospital and released.

Kimothy A. Herron, 20, of 813 N. Palmetto Ave., Ontario, escaped with minor injuries in a collision with a pickup truck driven by Robert D. Benson, 17, of 4974 Tyler St., Chino, early Sunday morning.

The accident occurred at Central Avenue and Phillips Boulevard, Chino area. The highway patrol said that Herron made a left turn in front of Benson. Herron was treated at Doctors Hospital and released.

Erik D. Groszwiller, 18, of 193 N. Second St., Upland, was injured when his car ran off the Orange Freeway early this morning and rolled down an embankment. The accident happened north of Sunset Crossing Road, Diamond Bar. Groszwiller told the highway patrol he had fallen asleep at the wheel. He was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and released.

Spotlight on coastal bill this week

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Backers of a coastal conservation bill are getting ready to walk through a mine field in the Senate during a week of tough issues for state legislators.

The lawmakers will consider a terminally ill patient's right to die, a city's right to enact rent control, and judges' right to an automatic annual cost-of-living raise.

A major farm land preservation bill faces a crucial hearing in the Senate Finance Committee, and the upper house will also consider measures to limit electroshock therapy, put a moratorium on aerosol sprays, and allow licensing of massage parlors.

But the spotlight will be on the coastal measure by Sen. Jerry Smith, D-Saratoga, now awaiting a hearing in the Senate Natural Resources and Wildlife Committee.

The bill cleared the Assembly last week, but the opposition, including developers and much of organized labor, is stronger in the Senate. An earlier version of the bill was blocked in the Senate Finance Committee.

The resources committee is expected to recommend passage to the full Senate, but the outcome on the floor is uncertain, despite the confidence of Smith and the strong endorsement of the bill by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

The bill would give a state commission and six temporary regional commissions veto power over development in the coastal zone, generally 1,000 yards inland. It would expand public access to the shore and limit coastal urban sprawl.

Opponents will try to get the Senate to reject Assembly amendments an force the bill into a two-house conference committee, which could add such amendments as compensation for landowners whose property use is restricted.

The opponents may also try to block a $31-million parks measure by Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy, D-San Francisco, that includes $1.5 million to fund the coastal commission. That bill is in the Senate Finance Committee on Thursday.

The last week of scheduled committee hearings is crowded with major bills, notably the right-to-death measure by Assemblyman Barry Keene, DEureka.

The conservative Senate Judiciary Committee votes Tuesday on the measure, which would allow a doctor to remove life-sustaining equipment from a dying patient who had authorized it in advance. The authorization would be renewable every five years.

Backers, including elderly groups and the California Medical Association, call it a "death-with-dignity" bill. Opponents say it is the first step toward euthanasia, or mercy-killing.

The full Senate, meanwhile, will vote on a heavily lobbied bill by Assemblyman Bill Campbell, R-Hacienda Heights, that would forbid cities to enact rent control ordinances.

Also pending in the Senate is Brown's latest attempt to curb judges' salaries, which now increase annually with the cost of living.

The governor's proposal, amended into a minor curbs bill by Assemblyman John Knox, D-Richmond, would freeze judges' salaries for two years and allow future cost-of-living raises up to five percent a year.

The farm land bill, by Assemblyman Charles Warren, D-Los Angeles, would establish a state council to keep California's prime agricultural land from being lost to urbanization.

Under the bill, local governments would have to justify to the council any development on nearly 12 million acres of prime farm land. The measure opposed by developers and large farmers, faces a difficult test Tuesday evening in the Senate Finance Committee.

Prospects are even dimmer for an alternate land use bill by Sen. Howard Way, R-Exeter, that would require state compensation of farm land owners for any use restrictions. That bill is in Warren's Assembly Resources, Land Use and Energy Committee today.

The same committee was expected to kill a measure by Sen. Clare Berryhill, R-Shingle Springs, that would exempt development under a local government's general plan from environmental impact report requirements.

Other topics of note include:

— A measure by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, placing a moratorium on the use of certain aerosol sprays, in the Senate Health and Welfare Committee Wednesday. Environmentalists say the sprays damage the atmosphere and lead to increases in skin cancer.

— A Vasconcellos bill limiting the use of shock treatment in mental hospitals, on the Senate floor.

— A bill by Assemblyman Alister McAlister, D-San Jose, allowing local governments to require licensing of massage parlors and their employees, in the Senate Local Government Committee today.

— Brown's three appointees to the revived five-member Agricultural Labor Relations Board, up for confirmation in the Senate Rules Committee Wednesday.

Escape from Terminal Island prison

No clues yet on Manson girl

LONG BEACH (AP) — The search continued today with no new leads for Susan Murphy, a former roommate of two of Charles Manson's famous female followers, and another woman who escaped from a federal prison at Terminal Island, the FBI said.

"We don't have any indication as to the whereabouts of either of them," an FBI spokeswoman said Sunday night. "There is no indication as to the direction of their flight at this time."

The spokeswoman said the search for Miss Murphy, 34, and Diane Ellis, 33, was still centered in the Long Beach-Los Angeles area, but no further details were available.

The two women escaped Saturday night after they overpowered a female prison guard, beat her, and escaped in her car, which was later found abandoned, authorities said.

"We are considering them dangerous because of the circumstances surrounding their escape," the spokeswoman said, but she added it was unknown if the women were armed.

Miss Murphy, nicknamed Heather, lived in Sacramento with Manson "family members" Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, who is serving time for attempting to kill President Ford last year, and Sandra Good.

The FBI has described Miss Murphy as a fringe member of the Manson clan.

She was serving a five-year sentence for conspiring with Miss Good to send threatening letters to business executives, accusing them of polluting the environment.

Miss Ellis was serving time for parole violation on a bank robbery conviction.

Prison officials said the two apparently acted alone without help from outside the facility.

Corrections officer Melinda Eisenhart, 25, was listed in good condition Sunday after what officials said was a severe beating. Her injuries required about 80 stitches, an official said.

Police arrest 185 at rock concert in L.A. Coliseum

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A seven-hour concert featuring British Rock group Jethro Tull ended with 185 arrests and 37 persons treated for apparent minor drug overdoses, authorities said.

Police officials had scheduled several meetings with management of the Coliseum-Sports Arena complex during a three month period to avoid a replay of the 511 arrests which occurred when the rock group

Pink Floyd appeared at the facility for five days in April 1975. That was the last concert there until Sunday night's performance.

"Actually they were a pretty well mannered group," said Lt. Carley Mitchell about the latest concert, attended by an estimated 50,000 persons.

"They came here to have a good time, and most of them did. But unfortunately some had to include narcotics as part of their enjoyment." Police reported no major disturbances.

The lieutenant said about half of those arrested were juveniles. Although several felony arrests for narcotics sale were reported, a spokesman said a majority of the arrests were for misdemeanor marijuana possession.

About 160 police officers and an approximately equal number of security guards patrolled the facility, authorities said.

Before Sunday's concert Coliseum manager Jim Hardy said, "We've done everything they've (the police) recommended in order that the kids will not be hassled and that the program will come off smoothly."

Hardy said warnings against marijuana smoking, drinking of alcoholic beverages or carrying weapons into the Coliseum were printed on each ticket.

Mitchell said the arrests greatly exceeded the number normally recorded at a football game with equivalent attendance.

"But you can't compare one to the other," he explained. "Your crowd is different. The crowd tonight (Sunday) is younger, whereas a football crowd is much older."

Search for missing girl near La Jolla continues

LA JOLLA (AP) — An exhaustive search by authorities, neighborhood volunteers and citizen-band radio operators continued today for a 9-year-old girl missing since Saturday.

Aleta Sue Grosenbach disappeared after leaving her grandmother's home in the Birdrock area, south of La Jolla, to buy a paper at a nearby shopping center, authorities said Sunday.

Kenneth O'Brien, coordinator of search operations, said, "We haven't ruled out one single thing. That's our problem, we have nothing to go on."

The girl and her mother, Judith Grosenbach of Kankakee, Ill., had been visiting the child's grandmother since June, police said.

Authorities said the girl was wearing white shorts, a flowered t-shirt and sandals when last seen.

Some 150 police and sheriff's officers, plus lifeguards and a number of volunteers were participating in the search, authorities said.

State briefs

SoCal firms gain on pipeline pacts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The rising cost of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline has meant added revenue for some 300 Southern California firms, a study by two companies shows.

The study by Fluor Engineers & Constructors, Inc. of Anaheim, and Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., Anchorage, shows that Southern California companies are benefitting to the tune of $300 million from contracts related to the project.

The sum represents the total value of purchase orders for equipment and material these firms have received either through Fluor or directly from Alyeska.

Contracts range from $61 to Mack Iron Works of Los Angeles for a strainer, to more than $100 million to U.S. Steel Corp.'s American Bridge Division plant in Maywood for the metal "shoes" that support the pipeline.

LNG facilities in remote areas

SANTA MONICA (AP) — The Rand Corp. has issued a report suggesting that all liquefied natural gas facilities be located in remote areas because of undetermined risks associated with handling of LNG.

"The prudent course of action would be to locate all facilities for handling LNG at remote sites until better estimates of risk can be made and determined to be low," the report said.

"The fact that current plans for handling LNG are not limited to remote sites makes it possible that experience may be accumulated at enormous cost," the report said.

Dessert burns four at banquet

OXNARD (AP) — Four guests at a charity ball were treated at a hospital after they were burned by their dessert, fire officials said.

Witnesses told the Oxnard Fire Department that brandy flaming atop a tray of Baked Alaska singed the guests as a waiter strolled by their table in the dimly-lit Mission Ballroom of the newly-opened Hilton Inn.

"They're not sure whether it flared (as a waiter poured additional brandy on the gourmet dessert) or whether it was dropped on their table," Fireman Jim Thomas said Sunday.

Angry rock fans at Cow Palace

DALY CITY (AP) — Police had to call in more than 100 reinforcements from 17 jurisdictions to quell a bottle-throwing crowd of angry rock fans outside the Cow Palace. There were no arrests or injuries.

"The potential for ugliness was really there," said Jerry Pompili of FM Productions, promoters of the concert Saturday night.

Viking 1, scientists get back to work after day off

PASADENA (AP) — The Viking 1 mini-laboratory and earthbound scientists were both scheduled to return to work today searching for clues about the possibility of life on Mars.

The lander and its human monitors had their first day off since the space vehicle touched down on the Red Planet last month. Scientists had let the lander remain idle Sunday.

Meanwhile, information already obtained from Viking 1 may help scientists understand the mechanism of ice ages on Earth.

"There are at least 22 different theories on glaciation at the moment, but we can't say which one, or ones, is more nearly correct," says astrogeologist Harold Masursky.

"We don't understand why the Earth has glacial periods, why ice ages start, why they stop or what causes them," Masursky said. "No matter what we discover about the correlation between Martian and terrestrial cycles, it will tell us something about the fundamental mechanism underlying ice ages."

"If nothing else, we'll be able to discard some of those 22 theories."

Masursky, who coordinated the search for a touchdown site for the Viking 1 lander on Mars, said information from Viking shows that water was never as abundant on Mars as it was on Earth. But water apparently has appeared in cycles that may relate to ice age cycles on Earth and to the solar system in general.

Plane crash survivor lifted from wreckage

GARBERVILLE (AP) — A Marysville man seriously injured in a deadly light airplane crash was airlifted from desolate coastal terrain Sunday after being stranded for two nights near the body of a companion.

Two U.S. Coast Guard helicopters flew James Reese, 21 of Marysville, from the crash site to Garberville Medical Center, a Humboldt County Sheriff's spokesman said, where he was reported in stable condition with broken arms and legs.

Reese, his wife, Debbie, 21, and Melody Pekarok, 19 of Marysville, survived the crash Friday near Shelter Cove 15 miles west of Garberville. The plane's pilot was killed in the crash. His identity was not immediately revealed.

The women were rescued Saturday night after scaling rocky cliffs and walking to a highway, the sheriff's spokesman said. They were reported in stable condition Garberville Medical Center.

Compuvote: new voting system

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Election officials, who must cope with 1,676 old voting machines to plumb the will of the people, are considering testing the latest electronic voting machine here.

Some of them think a handful of precincts ought to use the "Compuvote" devices, while others, including registrar of voters Tom Kearney, can't see entrusting even a small part of the vote to an untested system.

The Compuvote Corp. of Beverly Hills calls the device "the ultimate voting system." It utilizes a punch-card unit for the actual voting, and a memory unit that stores the results at each precinct. It shoots the results into a central computer by telephone.

As described, the device is the only system shown in San Francisco which can actually count precinct totals and get them to City Hall "almost instantaneously."

Virgil Elliott, the city's director of finance and records, said he witnessed a demonstration of the system and called it "the most advanced" he'd ever seen.

But Kearney disagrees, said, "I don't want to take a chance on a system that hasn't been proven in actual service yet." The final decision on a test will be made later.

First GOP floor fight in 20 years

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The last time the Republican party had a real contest for its presidential nomination, people were saying the GOP might be over the hill. It had been out of power for 20 years and its membership was waning.

But there was hope for change, for an improvement in Republican fortunes, and along came Dwight D. Eisenhower, a popular war hero. His first task was to take the nomination away from the party regular who, by all rights of tradition, was entitled to it.

Robert A. Taft of Ohio was so thoroughly associated with the leadership of his party that he was called "Mr. Republican." He had led the GOP through a generation of Democratic rule. Now that the country seemed to be looking for a change and the GOP had a shot at the White House, everybody assumed Taft would be the nominee.

It was 1952, and the party met in Chicago to pick a nominee delegates hoped would have the best chance of victory since the Great Depression swept the GOP from power.

Taft, son of a president, had been Ohio's favorite son candidate as early as 1936. He was a leading contender at the 1940 convention, but a deadlock threw the nomination to dark horse Wendell Willkie.

In 1944, Taft stepped aside to give his friend John W. Bricker a chance, but Bricker wound up as Thomas E. Dewey's running mate. And in 1948 Dewey's forces were in firm control for another nomination.

But 1952 looked like Taft's year. Twice beaten, Dewey would not be a threat, and the incumbent Democrat, Harry S. Truman, was not running. What's more, Taft had gained a national reputation from his opposition to Truman's legislative program.

Taft started campaigning early, and by the time the delegates reached Chicago he was claiming the nomination was all but his.

But some party regulars, including Dewey, weren't standing by Taft as their rightful leader. They were looking for a more glamorous candidate.

Eisenhower was one of the country's most popular public figures. He had directed the Allied drive in Europe in World War II and had been recalled to duty by Truman in 1950 to head the Atlantic Pact defense forces. He returned from Europe in June of 1952, just in time to throw his hat into the presidential ring.

Dewey had been laying the groundwork well so that Eisenhower moved into the convention in a virtual dead heat with Taft. The result was the most bitterly fought GOP conventions since Teddy Roosevelt had tried to oust Taft's father 40 years earlier.

It was essentially a power fight, the establishment vs. the insurgents. The only serious ideological issue between the two was Taft's isolationism against Eisenhower's more global views.

Taft controlled the party machinery, and the national committee backed him on early credentials fights. But Ike's appeal was stronger with the delegates.

Seek 2 in gang shooting

Police today are seeking two young men in connection with the apparent gang-related shooting of a POMONA youth in a department store parking lot Saturday night.

Officers said George Cortez of Pomona was shot three times in the face, back and legs in the Zody's store lot in the 1500 block of E. Holt Avenue at 6:50 p.m.

Cortez and a friend were pushing their car which had run out of gasoline, police said. Another auto pulled alongside theirs and a youth wearing a "Chino Sinners" jacket got out and began shooting.

The victim fled on foot and managed to hail a ride to Pomona Valley Community Hospital. He was transferred to County-USC Medical Center in poor condition.

Rob eatery

Two men robbed a POMONA restaurant at gunpoint Sunday night and ordered employees to lie down in a store room before fleeing, police said.

Officers indicated the pair held up the Kentucky Fried Chicken Restaurant, 375 E. Mission Blvd., at 8 p.m. They escaped with a small amount of cash.

The men were about 25 years old, and one wore a beanie and sunglasses, officers added.

Wounded

A 31-year-old Pomona man was shot in the face as he stood in the 2400 block of Barjud Street in Pomona late Saturday night, police said.

Officers said Sandra Love, 29, wife of Harold Love, the victim, was booked for attempted murder after the shooting.

Love, of 1348 Arroyo Ave., was hit in the right side of the face and arm by a shotgun blast fired from a passing car at 10:15 p.m. The auto sped away after the shooting, said police.

Love was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital and was reported in fair condition.

No identity

ONTARIO police this morning reported they have yet to identify a man found shot to death, execution style, Friday morning on a dirt road off Milliken Avenue near the San Bernardino Freeway.

Capt. James Grundy of the Ontario Police Department said that thus far in the investigation officers have found no fingerprints of the slain man on file, or anyone missing of a similar description.

Officers are continuing to check with other police agencies in their attempt to identify the man, described as a Latin, of medium height and build who had suffered a severe impairment of the right eye and the initials "MP" tattooed below a cross between his forefinger and thumb of his left hand.

Police said that the man died of a single gunshot wound to the back of his head.

Identified

A man whose body was discovered in a parked car Saturday afternoon by a pedestrian near Francis Street and Oaks Avenue in ONTARIO has been identified by police homicide investigators as Dennis Mahling, 30, of 850 W. Mission Blvd., Ontario.

Police investigating Mahling's death said they believe the man died somewhere else, possibly from an overdose of drugs, and was placed in the vehicle.

Officers said they are investigating the death as a possible homicide and have ordered an autopsy from the San Bernardino County Coroner's Office. Police said the autopsy, which is expected to reveal the exact cause of Mr. Mahling's death, has yet to be completed.

Threaten major platform rhubarb

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Critics of the carefully compromised platform proposed for the Republican Convention are threatening major floor fights, although the document has won tentative approval from both the Ford and Reagan camps.

At least nine minority reports on issues ranging from the Panama Canal to the Equal Rights Amendment are being prepared for consideration by the full convention when it takes up the platform Tuesday night. Some of the reports probably will be dropped or consolidated, but platform committee members on both sides of the issues are expecting floor fights on four or five.

Most of the proposed changes were being pushed by a conservative group acting separately from the Ronald Reagan leadership, although nearly all of those involved are Reagan supporters.

An observer close to the developments said Reagan leaders were happy to encourage efforts to push the platform closer to Reagan's positions without the challenger's camp having to take responsibility and possibly losing face if the efforts fail.

The conservative effort set up one more round in the long battle over the position the party should take regarding negotiations with Panama on the future of the Canal Zone.

Reagan has insisted there should be no concessions on what he described as U.S. sovereignty over the canal or on any defense and operating rights, despite U.S. commitments to acknowledge Panamanian sovereignty. The plank approved by the platform committee after extended debate last week quotes the 1904 treaty with Panama as giving the United States rights as "if it were sovereign" and specifies there should be no dilution of these rights or cession of any jurisdiction or property "necessary for the protection and security" of the United States and other American nations.

John East of North Carolina, one of the leaders of the group pushing for changes, said the language approved by the platform committee is "clearly a great improvement" over earlier versions.

But "it could be phrased even more positively," he added. He said negotiators sent to Panama should not have unlimited discretion to determine what is necessary for protection and security.

Reagan said at a news conference Sunday that "all of the major positions I have been talking about ... have been, virtually in my own wording, included."

East said Reagan supporters sat in on the meetings of the conservative faction "and they never told us 'for gosh sakes don't do it.'"

The revision group also was working on minority reports that would bring to the floor planks previously toned down by the thin Ford majority on the platform committee to avoid embarrassing the President or Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

These included statements on detente, military strength in comparison with the Soviet Union, the Helsinki agreements, Kissinger's support of efforts toward majority rule in southern Africa, failure of Ford to receive Soviet dissident Alexander Solzhenitsyn and continuation of chrome purchases from Rhodesia.

Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois, a leader of the Ford forces on the committee, said Ford backers will "fight hard to defend the language of the platform, which is very strong." He said U.S. insistence on full sovereignty over the Canal Zone would leave "nothing to negotiate." Ford backers say such a stand would lead to guerrilla warfare in Panama.

Endorsement of the Equal Rights Amendment divided the minority group. ERA opponents were reported working to obtain signatures to allow filing of a minority report. An effort also was under way to delete an endorsement of a constitutional amendment against abortion.

Keynoter Baker eyes 1980

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — For almost every prominent Republican, even those with no connection to the scandals, Watergate has meant nothing but political trouble.

An exception is Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, who gives the keynote speech tonight at the Republican National Convention.

That Baker was selected to go before the national television audience watching the convention is evidence in itself that his role as ranking Republican of the Senate Watergate Committee helped rather than scarred his career.

Baker, now 50, shot to national recognition in the spring and summer of 1973 as the committee hearings disclosed the breadth of the scandals surrounding former President Richard M. Nixon.

His above-the-battle approach to the televised inquiry earned the praise of Republican peers and gave rise to speculation about his running for the presidential nomination this year.

Baker is a natural for TV. His boyish good looks and quick humor drew fan mail from all over, including women regretting that Baker was not single. He is married to the former Joy Dirksen, daughter of the late Republican Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois.

The senator is on President Ford's list of possible vice presidential candidates. For a time, Baker did not believe that Ford would run for the presidency.

Baker said in an interview that he almost went for the nomination this year "until I was convinced Jerry Ford really was going to run and I just made a conscious decision that I didn't have the stomach for competing against a sitting president of my own party."

Beyond that, Baker says, "Some day I would really like to run for president," most likely in 1980.

Baker grew up in Huntsville, (pop. 375) in eastern Tennessee, a bastion of Republicanism since the Civil War.

His father served six terms in Congress and when Howard Sr. died, Baker's stepmother Irene, was named to fill the term. Baker's brother-in-law is a House member from Virginia and former Sen. John Sherman Cooper is a cousin.

As a 1949 graduate of the University of Tennessee Law School, Baker established a reputation as the best young lawyer in East Tennessee. A series of murder trials with Baker acting sometimes as defense lawyer and in other cases as prosecutor, became a source of local entertainment.

He became known as "Two-to-Ten Baker" for his ability to get murder defendants off with minimum jail terms. Baker also attracted corporate and business clients and is today independently wealthy.

After a futile attempt in 1964, Baker was elected to the Senate in 1966, becoming in his initial try for political office the first Republican ever popularly elected to the Senate from Tennessee.

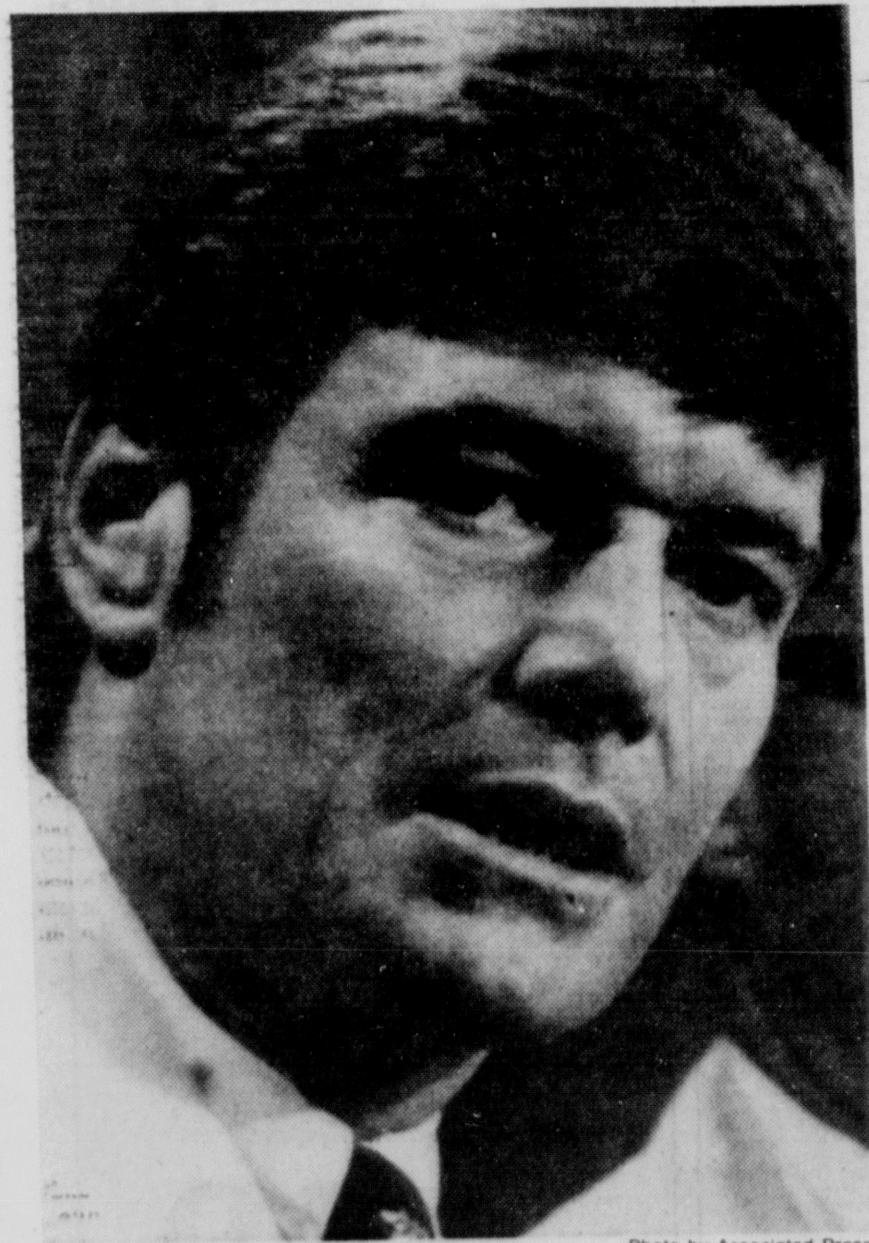

In the Senate, Baker votes conservatively, asserting his independence occasionally on issues like using highway trust funds for mass transit.

Baker is a first-rate photographer who processes his pictures in darkrooms at his houses in Washington and Huntsville.

He has had his own one-man shows in Tennessee and Washington, mostly landscapes and personalities from the Tennessee mountain country. Some brighten the walls of his Senate office.

Some years ago, Baker decided he wanted to learn to play tennis and built his own court in Huntsville. He converted all his friends and now when the Bakers are at home, there is a nonstop tournament.

To Baker, Huntsville provides a small town retreat from the constant demands on his life as U.S. senator.

BLOW TO REAGAN

Illinois Congressman Phil Crane, a former Ronald Reagan state chairman, announces his switch from Reagan to New York Senator James Buckley for President during a Kansas City press conference Sunday. Crane announced formation of a new committee to draft Sen. Buckley considered more conservative than Reagan.

Californians stump for Ronnie

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Dissension was not a problem for the California delegation to the Republican National Convention as proceedings got under way today.

Clearly, and even legally for two ballots, Ronald Reagan was the 167-member delegation's man. No defections announced here. No loud angry rumblings about Richard Schweiker, Reagan's choice for vice president.

But with the most recent Associated Press tally placing President Ford only 13 votes away from the 1,130 magic number needed for the nomination, the delegations mood was not exactly ebullient either.

Yet even in the face of such figures, with 105 uncommitteds and Reagan 94 delegates away from victory by the AP count, many delegates kept talking victory and persuasion.

"The missionary role is a good one," said H.L. Richardson, a conservative state senator from Arcadia who is an alternate.

"We worked with the governor and we like him. It's a very evangelical effort on the part of this delegation" in behalf of Reagan's bid against Ford for the GOP nomination.

Richardson was one of several delegates taking part in a largely unorganized effort by individual delegates to go out and spread the gospel about the former California governor to other delegations.

Lyn Nofziger, convention director of the Citizens for Reagan group, said some California delegates were being asked to contact uncommitted and "soft Ford" delegates.

George Christopher, former mayor of San Francisco and a Reagan alternate, skipped several planned social events to make phone calls to delegates around the country.

Christopher, a moderate defeated by Reagan in the 1966 primary for the governor's post, said he chose Reagan over Ford in large part because of what he said was Henry Kissinger's "control" of Ford.

Over the weekend, delegates passed their time at rallies and parties. When Reagan arrived at his hotel headquarters Sunday, he was greeted by a balloon and band demonstration.

And Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada, head of the nationwide Citizens for Reagan drive, took the opportunity to throw a verbal barb at California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

Laxalt told Reagan's cheering supporters at the outdoor rally that Brown, a Democrat, had been so impressed with Reagan that he had been trying to copy his act.

In fact, Reagan left Brown in such "good shape" with California's government that it gave Brown time to "hassle" Jimmy Carter by running against him for the Democratic presidential nomination, Laxalt said.

"And that isn't all bad," Laxalt said.

At the rally, Schweiker, a liberal senator from Pennsylvania, stood at Reagan's side.

Any California delegation rumblings about the choice were quite muted.

"I would say the majority would have preferred someone else, but the delegation is so fond of Reagan, it probably will go along," said Frank Adams, a Piedmont attorney who is the delegation's parliamentarian.

Fudging in food stamps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Those who watch the size of the food-stamp program's rolls as an indicator of welfare growth, unemployment problems or markets for farm-produced food may be confused by apparently conflicting government reports on how many families receive the coupons.

The Census Bureau reported this week it found 4.4 million households receiving stamps in July 1975. Food Stamp Division records from the field, where the families are certified, show the total was more like 5.94 million households then and 5.56 million early this summer.

Program experts at USDA said the Census figures — which are used extensively by USDA in raw form for work on caseload characteristics — do not include Puerto Rico, where about half the population receives coupons.

They also suffer from "a notorious under-reporting problem with people who don't want to say they get stamps," the officials said.

S.B. County auditor's wife, mother killed

SAN BERNARDINO (AP) — The wife and mother of San Bernardino County Auditor John Bulmer were killed and Bulmer seriously injured when the car which he was driving was struck by another car on Interstate 15 near Devore.

California Highway Patrol officials said Edna

Bulmer, 72, and Martha Bulmer, 52, were killed in the crash Sunday and Bulmer sustained major injuries.

Investigators said the Bulmer car was hit by another automobile which crossed the highway divider line. The driver of that car, Joseph L. Chapman, 18, of Las Vegas, sustained minor injuries.

Tornadoes hit Colorado, Neb.

By The Associated Press

Tornadoes riled up portions of extreme northeastern Colorado and the Nebraska panhandle overnight. The twisters were spawned from a small area of intense thunderstorms centered over western Nebraska.

Two tornadoes touched down Sunday night at Haxton, Colo., damaging several farm buildings and a few airplanes. Another twister was spotted 35 miles northwest of Akron, Colo.

In Nebraska, tornadoes were reported near Venango, Whitney and Chadron. There were no reports of injuries from any of the twisters.

Other thunderstorms were positioned along the Atlantic coast, the southeastern states and lower Mississippi valley this morning. A few of the storms along the New England coast were heavy, and power outages were reported through much of Rhode Island. A few rainshowers persisted in the northern Rockies and Oregon.

Temperatures were unseasonably cool through the northern portions of both Wisconsin and Michigan, with several readings in the low 40s. There was a possibility of scattered light frost through portions of the area.

Skies were generally clear over the southwestern states, the southern half of the plains, the upper Mississippi valley and the Great Lakes region. Partly cloudy to cloudy skies were found elsewhere.

MacArthur set for movies

LOS ANGELES (AP) —
The signing of Japan's surrender at the end of World War II will take place once more on the deck of the U.S.S. Missouri.

This time it will be for the start of filming of "MacArthur," Universal
Pictures' biography of
Gen. Douglas MacArthur.
Joseph Sargent will direct the scenes on the Missouri at its mooring in the Puget Sound Naval Station, Bremerton, Wash. The scenes start Aug. 17.

Producers Richard
Zanuck and David Brown have promised that the surrender ceremonies will be reproduced in authentic detail, with naval personnel and professional actors impersonating the participants.

Gregory Peck is portraying Gen. MacArthur.

When the Revolutionary War ended, Congress, motivated by fear of the military, did away with the armed forces. The one link of continuous service with the modern United States Army is provided by Capt. Alexander Hamilton's Company of New York Artillery, some 80-odd men and 3 officers, organized in 1776. It fortuitously was held in service at West Point and Ft. Pitt in 1784, surviving today. The World Almanac
notes, as an element of the 5th
Field Artillery Regiment U.S.A.

Card counters being rejected at casinos

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Nevada casino operators like customers who trust Lady Luck when playing blackjack. The player who depends on skill and wins might just be told to beat it.

Depending on luck alone, the blackjack player is likely to lose. Most clubs even welcome "system" players — either because the system doesn't work or the player hasn't learned it.

But among the many "systems" there apparently are some which do work — providing the player is willing to put in long hours learning them. One of these systems is card counting.

Gamblers claiming to be good card counters complain they are usually invited to play anything but blackjack, or are simply told to get out once they're spotted.

Casino spokesmen argue that the card counters may not be cheating, in the usual sense of the word, but are altering the odds in blackjack so that the casino's advantage is lost.

Lawsuits are piling up in various courts as self-professed card counters try to force the casinos to let them play blackjack — or hand over money for damages allegedly sustained when they are barred from the tables.

Basically, card counting is keeping track of pasteboards dealt in a blackjack game, where the object is to get 21, but no more.

If most of the 52 cards in the deck have been played and the card counter realizes there's a fistful of high-value cards left which could give him 21 or close to it, he will increase his bets because the odds of winning are improved.

It's not easy to count. Casino dealers often reshuffle the deck long before all cards are used — and before the card counter can figure out what's left in the deck.

Many clubs use more than one deck — sometimes up to six decks stacked in the "shoe," a box from which cards are dealt to players.

Kenneth Uston of San Francisco says he, and up to 100 other card counters, can alter the average 5 per cent advantage a casino holds over blackjack players to a point where the counter holds as much as a 2 per cent advantage.

Uston, who holds a master's degree in business from

Yale University and was a Pacific Stock Exchange executive before turning to gambling, is the most visible of the counters because of a series of lawsuits he has filed against major Las Vegas casinos.

Uston, 40, won't say how much money he makes but claims it's enough to provide him "the most enjoyable life
I could ever imagine."

Robbins Cahill, director of the Nevada Resort Association, says most casinos "don't really like the card counters, because they're changing the natural odds of the game."

"In order for a casino to keep operating, you have to keep the odds down to a normal level," says Cahill.
"We're not in the business for dead-even odds."

Cahill argues that even though casinos usually have the upper hand, "there are winners here. People can win and win big. But it's a gamble. Counting cards is an advantage for the player that the house can't live with. In blackjack, it should be the luck of the draw."

A growing school district

Chino expands education programs

About 10,800 pupils will be enrolled in the growing Chino Unified School District this year.

Students in the year-round school program at the elementary and secondary levels began classes on July 1. Those in the traditional nine-month system, including all Chino High School students, will start the fall semester
Sept. 13.

A number of new programs will be instituted in the district this year. A key one is the Re-evaluation of Secondary Education (RISE) plan by which secondary reading, math,
vocational education,
counseling services and curriculum development will be bolstered.

A reading specialist program for grades four to six will also be added during the year.

The school board also has approved a live-in farm manager-security officer for Don Lugo High School's student farm.

Thirty-two new teaching positions are being added in the district and more money will be spent for supplies and textbooks than last year.

The growing district also will add three new administrative positions as part of a reorganization plan.

The positions include finance director, director of secondary curriculum and pupil services, and computer programmer.

Ball park wine sale bill OK'd by state Senate

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state Senate has approved sale of wine in ball parks, stadiums or coliseums during professional sporting events.

The measure, introduced by Assemblyman Willie Brown, D-San Francisco, passed the Senate 22-5
Thursday.

Brown introduced it for the San Francisco Giants baseball team at Candlestick Park. However, it applies to any sports stadium seating over 40,000 people.

The measure returns to the Assembly for action on Senate amend-

The bill is AB 4458.

Breaking habit hard

DEAR DR. BROTH-ERS: I've always been what my husband calls a coffee addict. It started out when I was in college and continued through morning coffee klatches with neighbors that sometimes lasted three hours. When my heart started to act a bit strange I went to my doctor who told me to stay off caffeine. Since I've been on this wagon, I've been up the wall. I keep wanting something to hold in my hand. I know this sounds silly, but I think I'm having withdrawal symptoms. — E.K.

Dear E.K.: I don't know how much caffeine you were used to daily, but it's quite conceivable that you could experience very real withdrawal symptoms. A University of Michigan psychiatrist, John Greden, has warned that caffeine can cause nervousness, insomnia, headaches, sweaty palms and maybe the beginning of an ulcer. Coffee, tea, many soft drinks and some headache tablets also contain caffeine so it's not too difficult to see how someone could easily have a daily dosage that would exceed the limits for good health.

Dr. Greden says there are definite withdrawal symptoms for those who suddenly stop their intake of caffeine. They may feel irritable, depressed, drowsy, restless and they may also suffer from severe headaches.

All habits are difficult to break, but one suggestion is to list the occasions when you feel the strongest urge to revert to the habit. It will probably be when you're feeling some shyness or anxiety. When you're trying to break one pattern, temporarily use a substitute. If you need to hold something in your hand, try a cup of bouillon or orange juice.

DEAR DR. BROTH-ERS: My 18-year-old daughter has been visiting friends on the west coast and insists on hitchhiking back to our home in Massachusetts. She seems to feel that everybody in the world is full of love if one just believes in people and gives them an opportunity to prove it. My husband and I are worried sick. Do you think young women today are safe on the road?

Are we just being old-fashioned and untrusting? — N.A.

Dear N.A.: Although the number of hitchhikers has more than doubled in the past few years, it's still extremely dangerous for young women. I wouldn't want my daughter to hitchhike anywhere today and I don't blame you one bit for being worried.

Unfortunately, your daughter's view of the world is highly romantic and unrealistic. She may have been lucky and traveled only with kind, considerate, generous people who pick up a rider because they're bored and want to share in a vicarious adventure. There are many such people who offer rides.

Over the past few years, hitchhiking has spread to the middle-class. Many people see young people on the road and think of their own children, who though they could well afford to pay for their transportation, prefer to hitchhike for the thrill or the sense of freedom it seems to give them. Again unfortunately, such types aren't the only drivers on the road.

If, after all your warnings, your daughter insists on hitchhiking home, try to convince her that she's much safer if she does her thumbing in the company of a strong young man she can trust. If she's alone, or even with another girl, she's asking for trouble. Even if she were a karate expert, it wouldn't be safe.

AAUW charts activity

Pomona Valley Branch, American Association of University Women, has planned a summer fun fund-raising event on Tuesday at 10:30 a.m.

Following a tour of Hickory Farms at Montclair Plaza, members will lunch together. Friends will be welcome.

AAUW is open to all women graduates of accredited colleges. In charge of the event is Mrs. Margaret Womack, third vice president and her committee, Mmes. Judy Willmore, Darlene Jones, Florence Christensen, Valerie Thompson, Ruth Pollock and Barbara Mackenzie.

Reservations should be made with Mrs. Womack at 985-5722, or Mrs. Willmore, 593-1956.

Carpet care

For those interested in a bit of saved elbow grease, Leslie Wood, Johnson Wax consumer affairs specialist, advises this household tactic: Keep after the dirt on high carpeted traffic areas with a spray foam rug cleaner and remove spots elsewhere when they occur. The result will be a carpet that looks bright longer and requires wall-to-wall cleaning far less frequently.

A look at the prospective vice president

Schweiker's side of the story

Editor's Note: Many questions have been raised about Ronald Reagan's coalition with liberal Sen. Richard Schweiker in his race for the Republican nomination for president. But what about Schweiker's side of the coalition? In an interview on the Reagan campaign trail, Schweiker describes his view of the coalition.

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Sen. Richard Schweiker says his philosophy is compatible with that of Ronald Reagan. He isn't becoming more conservative, says Schweiker, just more critical of the effectiveness of the federal bureaucracy.

The liberal Pennsylvania senator said he sees no inconsistency or compromise of principles in joining a potential presidential ticket headed by Reagan, one of the nation's leading spokesmen of conservative anti-Washington ideology.

In a campaign trail interview recently, Schweiker said his view on economic issues would change "because I feel that instead of representing one state, I'd have to represent 50 states."

And his view on the high-cost government programs which he has supported in the past is also consistent with Reagan's views, he added.

"What I have been asking myself in recent years is, 'Are we really getting our money's worth?'"

"There is a serious question in my mind in that — as much as I voted for these programs — are they doing with I intended them to do?"

A review of Schweiker's voting record shows that he has moved sharply to the left over the past 15 years in the eyes of the major liberal, conservative and labor rating groups.

But since he accepted the former California governor's invitation to be his prospective vice presidential running mate, Schweiker has been trying to soften his liberal image and soothe fears of Reagan's conservative backers.

During Schweiker's eight years in the House of Representatives, 1961 through 1968, he ranked close to the middle of the scale in both liberal and conservative ratings.

But during his last seven years in the Senate Schweiker has soared far ahead of most Democrats and nearly all other Republicans on the labor and liberal voting charts and plunged nearly to the bottom of the conservative ratings.

Schweiker said in an interview before a joint appearance with Reagan in Charleston that there was no change in his fundamental beliefs between his House and Senate years, but that he was representing a different constituency. He applies the same logic to joining forces with Reagan.

"I feel a strong aspect of my job is to represent my constituents. And I think looking at the figures for the House and Senate has reflected that," he said.

As a congressman, Schweiker represented the suburbs west of Philadelphia, including the Main Line region, "probably the sixth or seventh most affluent congressional district in the country."

As a senator, he represented a large industrial state, with a large blue collar constituency, and he said he voted for their "economic interests," particularly for government spending on social services and for legislation backed by organized labor.

Now, he said, he sees in Reagan's approach a better way to accomplish these goals.

"The thing that has intrigued me about Gov. Reagan, that has attracted me, is his concept to utilize the private sector to solve social problems," Schweiker said.

"I think the time is long overdue that we try some the government acting as a catalyst to effect private sector solutions."

Schweiker said he thinks the Reagan approach could be taken to job programs and insurance for catastrophic illness.

Reagan and Schweiker have produced a long list of areas of agreement, including mutual opposition to amnesty for Vietnam war draft evaders, abortion-on-demand, gun control, forced busing and detente as practiced by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Their three areas of severe disagreement are Schweiker's near-perfect pro-labor voting record and his coauthorship of two pieces of legislation which Reagan has campaigned against as ruinous, expensive extensions of big government. These are the Kennedy national health insurance bill and the Humphrey-Hawkins bill.

Growing up fat or thin?

BOSTON (AP) — Women who do not get enough to eat during their first six months of pregnancy are more apt to produce children who will grow up to be fat adults, researchers say.

But they find the opposite is true of fetuses deprived of nourishment in the last three months of their mothers' pregnancies and during the first few months after their birth. These children grow up to be slimmer than normal.

The researchers reached their conclusions after studying the weights of 94,800 men who were born during a famine in Holland during World War II.

The study was conducted by Drs. Zena A. Stein and Mervyn W. Susser, a husband and wife team at the Columbia University School of Public Health. Their work was published in the Thursday edition of the New England Journal of Medicine.

"The most important point is that prenatal exposure to famine has a postnatal effect on young adults," Susser said in an interview.

He said the findings support two separate theories of why children grow up to be fat or slim.

The researchers found that of 4,300 men whose mothers were deprived of food during their first six months of pregnancy, 2.77 per cent grew up to be obese. That compares with a rate of 1.45 per cent among 15,900 men whose mothers had normal pregnancies.

Susser said this finding supports the theory that deprivation of food during the early months of pregnancy affects development of the child's hypothalamus, the part of his brain that controls appetite.

"During this stage of development the hypothalamus cells differentiate into different functions," Susser said. "Something happens there that affects its later regulatory function on appetite."

The researchers found opposite results among men exposed to famine during their mothers' last three months of pregnancy and the first three to five months of life. Of 6,200 of these men studied, only .82 per cent grew up to be obese.

Doctors have suggested that children who are overfed during their first months will develop extra fat cells, and these cells will make the person fat for life.

Susser said that his findings — that children who do not eat much when they are young grow up to be slimmer than normal — support this theory. They show that the other extreme produces opposite results.

Women who deprive themselves of food for other reasons would probably have a similar affect on their children, Susser said.

"The famine is an extreme case," he said. "We believe another extreme situation would produce similar results."

The researchers studied the outcome of a famine that covered the Western Netherlands from October, 1944, until May, 1945. The food shortage resulted from a Nazi embargo that was a reprisal for a strike by Dutch railroad workers.

The doctors obtained their statistics by looking at the records of 19 year olds drafted into the Dutch military between 1964 and 1967.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Early in 1781, British General Cornwallis, in Virginia, was engaged in a debate by letter with his Commander-in-Chief Clinton, in New York City. Cornwallis was confident that reinforcements could overwhelm colonial resistance in the area. Rather than sending troops, Clinton, boxed at New York and fearing French-American attack, ordered 3,000 of Cornwallis' men to the city. As Cornwallis was embarking the troops at Portsmouth, Clinton relented and allowed them to remain in Virginia, ordering Cornwallis to establish himself in a strong position on the Chesapeake Bay. He suggested Yorktown as a place.

CLIP and SAVE!

CLIP and SAVE!

MAKE EVERY KILOWATT COUNT.

Edison has over 80 conservation tips. Here are a few.

SIX HOT TIPS ON AIR CONDITIONING.

You'll save energy. Money, too.

1. Air condition only rooms in use.

If you have a room unit, keep all doors closed to the room you're cooling. When the children (or family pet) go outside, don't forget to close the door. Keep the windows closed, too. And draw your draperies and blinds. Outside awnings or other sun screens will also reduce your cooling needs.

2. Keep equipment clean.

Clean accessible parts, but be careful not to damage them. Check filters every month and clean or replace as needed.

3. Keep temperature at 78° or higher.

The less difference there is between inside and outside temperatures, the lower the air conditioning cost. If you have a room air conditioner, use a thermometer to see that the room temperature drops no lower than 78°. Remember: air conditioning is not to make you cold — just comfortable.

4. Consider an automatic timer.

Timer attachments are available that will turn off your room air conditioner when you are away from home and turn it on before you return.

5. Investigate an energy-saving unit.

If you're in the market for a room air conditioner, compare the Energy Efficiency Ratio rating. The higher the efficiency, the more cooling you get from the electricity you use.

6. Insulate your attic.

If your attic isn't properly insulated, you could be using too much energy for air conditioning. (Too much energy to heat your home, too.) For information, see your local insulation contractor.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

A sawfish looks like a big shark with a long, flat, sawlike snout. Sawfishes live in the warm parts of the ocean. An adult sawfish sometimes reaches 20 feet in length. Its "saw" is often three feet long, and is armed with sharp teeth. The sawfish uses its toothy snout mainly to catch its prey. It swiftly attacks whole schools of fish, slashing left and right with its powerful weapon as it goes. It then feasts upon the victims at its leisure. The sawfish also uses its saw to defend itself against bigger enemies. And the saw can also be used as a shovel for digging up food in the muddy ocean bottom. The popular idea that the sawfish uses its saw to cut holes in the bottom of boats so that the fish can eat the occupants when the boat sinks is untrue. Another interesting fish, also named after its long beak, is the swordfish. The swordfish uses its long, swordlike beak in much the same way the sawfish uses its saw. A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other line prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Scully's return a bright spot

CHICAGO — The best thing that has happened to the Dodgers this disappointing summer was the recent announcement that Vin Scully will return.

Rumored to be leaving after this season because he doesn't like the long road trips, Scully signed an open-end agreement that will keep him doing Dodger games for many years.

The catch is he will only do the home radio and road TV games that don't conflict with his CBS-TV pact. He'll do no road radio games.

A third announcer will be hired for that.

However all is not lost. Scully for half the games is better than Scully for no games at all.

In fact the Dodgers' loss will prove a boon for Ram fans.

"The last I heard, I'll probably do all the Rams' road games (on CBS-TV)," Scully said as we chatted in the Dodger broadcast booth.

He also is obviously happy he won't be leaving the Dodgers.

"I'm delighted to continue my association with the Dodgers," he exclaimed. "I love baseball. It's my favorite. But I have a big family and a young wife at home and I want to spend more time with them."

Scully has six children, three boys and three girls. The boys are Michael (16), Kevin ("nearly" 13) and Todd (12). The girls are Erin (9), Kelly (8) and Kathy (18 months).

"We're a Brady's Bunch," he grinned referring to the TV program. "I had three kids, Sandy (Mrs. Scully) had two and we had Kathy."

No housekeeper

"The difference between TV and real life is that on the TV show, they had a housekeeper that did a lot. In real life it ain't that way."

Then the redhead elaborated on his feelings about going on the road with the team.

"It gets to the point where the road is depressing," he explained. It gets to you. It's an erosion on your family life. Once the game starts I love it. But that's only about three hours. It's the other 21 that get you."

"On the road you commit the greatest crime there is. You kill time and time is precious stuff. If we played 162 games at home, I'd never get out."

The NFL games require only two or three days away from home at one time. He will also do golf and tennis. Again, neither will require him to travel for extended periods.

And so we will all continue to be entertained and informed by Vin Scully, the best announcer around. In fact, the man's only flaw is that he is so good that others suffer by comparison.

A New York Post columnist wrote: "In the 1974 World Series, Curt Gowdy, Tony Kubek and Oakland's Monte Moore sounded like rejects from a college radio station compared to Scully."

"Warner Wolfe, Bob Prince and Bob Uecker, the ABC people this year, ought to be locked up in a room and forced to spend 100 hours a week listening to Vin Scully."

Scully has a good voice. But there are a lot of those in radio. However his is a distinctive voice and there are less of those.

Way with words

But, most of all, the man has a way with words.

I'd like to be able to write about a game as well as Vin Scully can tell about it.

Listen. The Dodgers are playing the Mets. John Milner flies out. Dave Kingman follows with a home run.

"Milner is the second out of the inning," Scully says. Milner doesn't get enough of the ball. Here's Dave Kingman who doesn't need to get enough of it. And there it goes. A home run for Dave Kingman. So Milner hits a long out and Kingman hits one out long."

In Pittsburgh, Scully mentioned a cartoon he had enjoyed in the Times about Judge Matthew Byrnes who is out to end the controversial Diamond Lane project on the Santa Monica Freeway.

"The cartoon shows a bumper sticker that says, 'Honk if you love Judge Byrnes. Well I drive on it every day and I hate it,'" says Scully. So Judge Byrnes all the way from Pittsburgh, HONK, HONK HONK. We love you!

Broadcasting is partly show business and Vin Scully has been smitten a long time.

"When I was a kid we had an old radio," he recalled. "It was a console, one of those big four-legged monsters. This was before TV. I'd put a pillow directly under it and lie down under the thing. I used to get goose bumps listening to the roar of the crowd. It's good theatre. You say your piece and get off."

Vin Scully won't be speaking as many "pieces" for the Dodgers next year. But he now has a long running part and getting off is not nearly as bad as getting out.

Rain raising hob with PGA

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Pro golfers raised a clamor for a firm rain policy as the 58th PGA Championship went into a fifth-day overtime today with former Masters champion Charles Coody holding a two-stroke lead over Jack Nicklaus and the unsung golfing optometrist, Dr. Gil Morgan.

"I have always thought that once a guy hits a shot in a tournament, that shot should count no matter what the circumstances," insisted the 39-year-old Coody, whose two-day, rain-interrupted 67 for the third round put him in command position with a 207—three under par.

"I always have felt that if there was just one man left on the course the entire round should be replayed," argued Arnold Palmer. "That is the purist's view, but I have to admit that television and other things have to be taken into account."

"I am not arguing either way," said Tom Weiskopf. "All I am saying is that we should have a firm policy. We shouldn't have to sit around and sweat it out. There shouldn't be arbitrary decisions varying with each tournament."

Ed Sneed, who had completed Sunday's round only to learn he had to report to the first tee and do it all over again, was distressed. "I agree with Coody," he said. "Once a shot is made, no one should be allowed to erase it."

It is an argument that is bound to continue to boil—among golf officials, television brass and spectators as well as players—long after the $45,000 first prize in this tournament has been decided.

Nobody knows when that might be. More thundershowers were forecast today, with the first teeoff scheduled at 9:30 a.m., EDT, and the leaders were closely bunched enough to make an 18-hole playoff appear likely.

Coody was heading for the 14th tee when a crackling thunderstorm, with winds and drenching rain, struck the Congressional Country Club course late Saturday. He was one of the 24 leaders who had to get up at daybreak Saturday to complete the third round, which was washed out by a similar cloudburst.

Coody, making an early morning return to the course, sank a 10-foot putt on the final hole for his 67 and a two-shot lead over Nicklaus and Morgan. Nicklaus, the defending champion, nailed his approach shot three feet from the cup on the 18th for a 69; Morgan, finished bogey-bogey for a 75.

This left Nicklaus and Morgan tied at 290 with the 46-year-old Don January alone at 210, followed by a formidable fivesome including Masters winner Ray Floyd, South Africa's Gary Player, Dave Graham of Australia, Dave Stockton and Tom Kite, tied at 211.

Nicklaus had just birdied the third hole with a 20-foot putt when the newest storm hit Sunday, forcing the PGA to cancel the day's proceedings and—unlike the day before when only a few rounds remained unplayed—order the field to start afresh on the fourth round today.

Only 19 of the 76 survivors had posted complete rounds before the storm hit. One of them was Miller Barber, who shot a 75 for 297 and reportedly caught the first plane out of town. Officials said this could only be confirmed when Miller's name is called at the first tee today.

Although the record crowds Saturday and Sunday took a terrible buffeting from the elements and didn't get to see the show they paid for, and although the postponement upset the tempo of the players, perhaps the worst beating was suffered by the TV contractors, in this case ABC.

The successive thunder storms wiped out the week-end of prime sports programming, for which the network perhaps paid as much as $500,000. How this washout affected contracts with sponsors, who pay around $50,000 a minute for commercials, probably will remain a trade secret.

But the ABC, with a highpriced staff headed by the Olympic anchorman Jim McKay and including talent flown from overseas, was reduced to showing re-runs of the sweltering 1964 U.S. Open here, won by Ken Venturi, and the 1975 PGA at Firestone in Akron, Ohio.

There were so many pictures of Nicklaus winning at Firestone that some viewers were lulled into the belief that he had repeated here.

Nicklaus, with 16 major championships on his belt but with only one tour triumph this year, now appears to be in a perfect position to move in and grab the big prize, which he admits would "make my year."

The thunder and lightning, however, have left him a little bit nettled.

He was playing the 13th Saturday when the clouds darkened and he thought he heard a distant clap of thunder.

"That's it," said Jack, "let's head for the club house."

"Just a minute," an official with the group said, "we haven't heard the siren yet. The tournament hasn't been officially stopped."

"It has for me," said Nicklaus, tossing his club to his bushy-haired caddy, Angelo.

Coody spoke to Nicklaus and the two of them, along with Gene Littler, putted out. Jack wasn't very pleased.

"They've got this $8,500 lightning detector machine and they don't even look at it," Jack said sourly.

It was different Sunday. As soon as the skies darkened in the West and there was the slightest trace of a storm, the PGA sounded the siren.

Sutton masters Cubs again

CHICAGO (AP) — Don Sutton would like to see Rick Monday with the Los Angeles Dodgers, but not at his own expense.

In fact, it was Sutton who nixed a proposed deal between the Dodgers and the Chicago Cubs last winter involving himself and Monday.

"Who wants to have a home ball park where his record is 5-9? asked Sutton, who as a 10-year veteran with the last five years on the same club is empowered through a collective bargaining agreement to refuse a trade.

The reason Sutton would like to have Monday on his team is "because he hits me so well. That makes three homers off me this year."

Monday crashed Sutton's first pitch for a homer into a stiff wind Sunday but the Dodger right-hander settled down to hurl a 3-2 victory while shedding himself of his so-called Cubs jinx.

It marked the fourth victory in four starts for Sutton against the Cubs this season. Prior to this year, Sutton had a 5-16 career record against the Cubs.

"I think it took me three or four years before I beat them," said Sutton, who hiked his record to 14-9 for the season. "What makes the story concerning the Cubs and myself unbelievable is that through the years the Cubs changed personnel and I'd still lose. Again they changed personnel and I win."

"All I know is I once was 0-13 against them and even now when I see Ernie Banks walking around the ballpark in a business suit, I shudder."

Sutton said: "A first-pitch home run makes you pucker up. It's not the ideal way to start a ballgame, but I thought we could score some runs."

What Sutton didn't know is that Monday's homer was an ill omen for the Cubs. Five times this year Monday has opened a game with a home run and the Cubs have lost four of them.

But Monday tried his best. He also singled with two outs in the fifth and scored the Cubs' only other run on a double by Jose Cardenal. Before that, the Dodgers pushed across three runs in the fourth inning which included a pair of walks and a costly balk by loser Bill Bonham.

With one out in the fourth, Bonham walked Bill Buckner and Steve Garvey. Ron Cey singled across the tying run, sending Garvey to third.

Umpire Bruce Froemming then called a balk on Bonham, allowing Garvey to score and sending Cey to second. Bill Russell singled Cey across for what proved to be the winning run.

"Two walks and a balk," said Cubs

Manager Jim Marshall. "That's all it took to lose."

Bonham, suffering his 10th loss against seven victories, said, "I don't know what I did. Just call it bad pitching."

Froemming said Bonham stopped his motion but failed to step off the rubber which constitutes a balk.

Angels' failures puzzle manager

ANAHEIM (AP) — Manager Norm Sherry says he can't understand why his California Angels can't jump out of the American League West Division cellar and into fifth place.

"We just can't seem to grab it, although it has been there for the taking on several occasions," Sherry sighed after the Angels fell 5-3 to the Milwaukee brewers Sunday and remained one-half game and two percentage points behind the Chicago

White Sox—current residents of fifth place.

When somebody asked the balding Sherry if he had noticed more hairs turning gray, he smiled and said, "I don't have enough left to turn gray. But if this keeps up I may lose what little I have left."

Sherry's managerial record is now 11-11 and the Angels are mired in a four-game losing streak.

Bill Travers and Bill Castro spaced eight hits Sunday as Milwaukee completed a sweep of the three-game series. The Brewers built up a 4-0 lead and then weathered a three-run Angel rally in the seventh before adding an insurance run in the ninth.

Travers posted his 14th victory while Castro, who came on in the seventh, managed his fourth save. Gary Ross, who had won five of his last six decisions at Anaheim Stadium, saw his record fall to 7-14 in absorbing the loss.

"We've been playing better," said Sherry. "We've been close in every game."

They were close again Sunday. Trailing 4-0, California erupted for three runs in the seventh on a double by Bill Melton and singles by Rusty Torres, Tommy Davis and pinch-hitter Bruce Bochte.

Mike Hegan slammed a solo homer and Darrell Porter drilled a run-scoring double to pace Milwaukee's 10-hit attack. Von Joshua, Robby Yount and Don Money added two singles apiece with Yount driving in a pair of runs.

Melton had a double and single for the Angels while Davis managed a pair of singles.

Plunkett's return unspectacular

By Associated Press
Jim Plunkett's homecoming was successful, but not spectacular.

And it was overshadowed by a stingy defense that frustrated the Kansas City Chiefs Sunday as San Francisco remained unbeaten in National Football League exhibition play with a 21-13 triumph.

Plunkett, who won the Heisman Trophy as a collegian at Stanford University, was making his debut at home with the 49ers. He directed a key touchdown drive in the final minutes, but completed only 10 of 21 passes for 67 yards.

"I'm just not real sharp yet," said Plunkett, who played the whole game after sitting out last week's 49er victory over Denver. "We won, but we are going to have to control the ball more."

Coach Monte Clark, unbeaten after three games as the new 49ers head coach, didn't mind Plunkett's lack of success. His defensive unit sacked Chiefs quarterbacks Mike Livingston and Mike Nott seven times for losses totalling 99 yards, and held the offense to a paltry 2.1 yards gained per play.

Running backs Del Williams, Sammy Johnson and rookie Paul Hofer did the scoring for the 49ers, all on the ground. The runs were part of a 268-yard rushing performance by the winners.

The Green Bay Packers used Chester Marcol's toe to defeat the New England Patriots 16-14 in Sunday's other exhibition game.

Saturday, the Tampa Bay Buccaneers were led by former 49er quarterback Steve Spurrier in recording their first NFL victory, a 17-3 decision over the winless Atlanta Falcons.

In other Saturday games, the New York Giants pounded Houston 30-14, Los Angeles edged Seattle 16-13, Denver knocked off Dallas 13-9, Chicago upended Baltimore 24-14, Pittsburgh overpowered Washington 27-7, Cincinnati nipped Detroit 26-24 and Miami topped Philadelphia 24-16.

Friday, Oakland routed the New York Jets 41-17 and New Orleans downed Buffalo, 21-14.

In today's game in Tokyo, the first game ever played outside the North American continent, the St. Louis Cardinals beat the San Diego Chargers 20-10 in an exhibition that attracted 38,000 fans.

Quarterback Jim Hart hit wide receiver Ike Harris on a 52-yard touchdown pass that broke a third-period tie and powered the Cards to victory and hand the Chargers their first preseason loss in three games. St. Louis is also 2-1.

The Cards also got a pair of Jim Bakken field goals and a 15-yard Bill Donkers-to-Pat Tilley TD pass. San Diego scored on Dan Fouts' 23-yard pass to Dwight McDonald and Sergio Albert's field goal.

Minnesota plays at Cleveland tonight.

The Chiefs, who have scored one touchdown from scrimmage in three games, threatened to overtake the 49ers in the second half when Larry Brunson returned a kickoff 99 yards to score and Jan Stenerud kicked his second field goal of the day to cut San Francisco's lead to 14-13.

But Hofer, a rookie running back from Mississippi, scored on a 47-yard run with two minutes left to put the game out of the Chiefs' reach.

Marcol, who missed all but the opening game last season because of a leg injury, booted field goals of 37, 36 and 32 yards in the first half to show Coach Bart Starr that he doesn't have to worry about that phase of the game as Green Bay prepares for the upcoming season.

Spurrier, selected by the Buccaneers in the expansion draft, ran for one touchdown on a dive from the one and his passing sparked a 70-yard drive, capped by Essex Johnson's one-yard touchdown run.

The NFL's other expansion team, Seattle, scored twice in the final 10 minutes to press Los Angeles. Tom Dempsey's field goals of 36, 41 and 26 yards and quarterback James Harris' two-yard touchdown run gave the Rams their score.

Terry Bradshaw passed for two touchdowns and set up a third as the two-time Super Bowl champion Steelers erupted after a scoreless first half. Lynn Swann and Randy Grossman caught the TD passes. The defending champions held Washington scoreless until quarterback Joe Theismann's five-yard run with 1:07 left in the game.

The Giants didn't show any sign of fatigue, scoring 21 points in the second period despite playing their second game in four days. Larry Csonka, Larry Watkins and Gordon Bell scored on short runs for the Giants, who also had Jim Obradovich catch a three-yard touchdown pass. Dan Pastorini completed pass plays of 61 yards to Billy Johnson and 50 to Ken Burrough for Houston's scores.

Walter Payton gained 122 yards in 31 carries and scored twice for the 3-0 Bears. Quarterback Bob Avellini and Bo Rather combined for a 56-yard touchdown pass play, while Bo Thomas booted field goals of 50 and 42 yards for the winners.

Denver evened its record at 2-2 with the help of two first-half scoring passes by Steve Ramsey and a stingy defense that forced Dallas, 0-3, to get its points on field goals of 26, 21 and 50 yards by Efen Herrera.

Quarterbacks Bob Griese and Don Strock combined to throw three touchdown passes for the 3-0 Dolphins, while the Eagles remained winless after three outings.

Two-time Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin was on the receiving end of a 10-yard touchdown pass from quarterback John Reaves for the Bengals. Reaves, who entered the game in the second period when starting quarterback Ken Anderson was shook up, also threw a touchdown pass to rookie Billy Brooks. Danny Reece returned the second-half kickoff 86 yards for the touchdown that helped produce the victory.

INSPECT NEW BUILDING

Mike D. Dirksen, left, superintendent of the Chaffey Union High School District, and G. A. Chalfant, president of the Chaffey school board, tour the district's new Business Education Building, situated on the Chaffey High School campus in Ontario. Other administrators and board members are in the background. This final board inspection was made Thursday. Before being renovated for use by business education students, this building served as the district's administrative center. Chaffey district administers high schools in Alta Loma, Upland, Ontario and Montclair serving some 13,000 students.

Bilingual-bicultural program for Pomona's schools recommended

Moving to bring the district into compliance with the Lau vs. Nichols U.S. Supreme Court Decision, administrators will recommend to Pomona school board Tuesday that it approve a six-year plan to develop a full bilingual-bicultural program.

The board meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Diamond Point Elementary School in Diamond Bar.

That court decision requires public schools to teach limited and non-English speaking students in the language of the home and teach English as a second language.

The recommendation to be placed before the board asks that "a major thrust be made in grade one in 1976-77" and that "growth shall be made in both directions until all the classrooms with language-limited children are served."

At the secondary level, the plan to be proposed calls for all seventh and ninth grade classes having 10 or more language-limited students to provide bilingual-bicultural classrooms in 1976-77.

The plan carries a first-year price tag of $315,654 for personnel, materials and staff training.

A "needs" chart accompanying the proposal, indicates that there were 3,001 "language limited" children in district schools last spring.

Other agenda items to be presented for board action are a $1.3 million proposal to assure academic excellence and firm and fair discipline in district schools, a plan to reorganize the educational services department and a proposal that the adult education office be moved from the Education Center into the old Park Avenue High School building at 605 N. Park Ave.

Pitzer program helps returning student

Nearly 100 adults expected to enroll in school this fall

It takes motivation to successfully re-enter the academic world after years of being out of school.

"Unless a person is extraordinarily motivated, it is easy to get discouraged," said Polly Rabinowitz, associate director of Pitzer College's New Resources program for the post-college age student.

"The returning student often feels a lack of confidence in his ability to perform well academically. Sometimes they face pressures from a family or career."

The New Resources program, inaugurated in 1974, has attracted a number of students this summer and will enroll nearly 100 adults when school reopens in the fall.

Jim Jamieson, vice president of the college, is one of the founders of the program. At the time, Pitzer had fewer than 10 post-college age students enrolled at any one time and few stayed very long.

"The idea is that the college can provide new resources to adults seeking additional life options and in turn, these people bring us new resources in terms of a broad range of intellectual interests and life experiences," said Jamieson.

"We looked at our total program and saw that it was geared to the 18 to 22-year-old. Now we meet the needs of the non-traditional student and still maintain rigorous academic standards."

Mrs. Jean Barnes of Baldwin Park is typical of the students in the program. Divorced and the mother of two teen-agers, she takes the bus from her home to her classes in Claremont.

"When I first thought about going to college, I was scared to death," said Mrs. Barnes. "But the last three years have been the greatest in my life."

At 48, Mrs. Barnes is half way to her goal, a bachelor's degree.

"I knew that I had to do this for myself. I saw friends clutching onto their children and trying to live through them and thought 'that isn't healthy'."

"I've never regretted my decision," she added. "Going to college has given me a sense of freedom and identity, and it has also given my children room to grow."

Elizabeth Watson of Pomona, a former member of the Women's Army Corps, said she became intrigued by the New Resources program because she didn't have to take a battery of tests to "prove I could be a student" and because "I felt I could be accepted for myself, as an adult."

Since lack of confidence is the No. 1 obstacle to returning to college in the middle years, a number of workshops and special seminars have been established for new students to "get their feet wet" before diving right into the regular academic program.

Mrs. Watson said the seminars and sense of belonging gave her the confidence to take a psychology course.

"I was at first frightened and put off by the youth of most of the Pitzer students. But I just don't feel that anymore."

Though many students enrolled in the program hope their degree will create new options for them professionally, others say that they became interested just because they wanted to learn.

"I had always felt that I missed something by not going to college," said Loretta Fretter, office manager of Boys Market in Pomona and a Claremont resident.

"I wanted to see if the dreams I've had for 20 years could come true. I really want to learn. It is tremendously satisfying to find out I can do it."

SHARING EXPERIENCES

campus this summer. The program, started in 1974, will enroll nearly 100 adults when school reopens in September.

Upland council reviews general plan proposals

Upland City Council members will review proposed amendments to the general plan of the city during a public hearing at 7 tonight.

The amendments, which cover 11 acres, are designed to achieve consistency between the zoning map and the general plan map.

Also on this evening's agenda is a request by Joseph P. Coulson for a conditional use permit to establish a private elementary school for grades kindergarten through six on a half acre at the southeast corner of Sultana Avenue and Seventh Street.

The demolition of the Upland Inn which was struck by fire on April 1 will again be discussed at the council meeting.

A public hearing to show cause why the city should not abate the nuisance has been held over for a month pending arrangements between the city, the owner and a demolition firm engaged by the insurance company for the tearing down of the building.

Five zone changes affecting approximately 32 acres will also be presented at the council meeting. Three of the zone changes are for the construction of homes, and two apply to commercial zoning.

Restaurant is robbed

Two masked robbers held up a Claremont restaurant Friday, escaping with $200 a cash.

Sheriff's deputies said the men, wearing red bandannas, held a knife on employees at the Kentucky Fried Chicken Restaurant, 934 E. Foothill Blvd. at 3 p.m. They were described as whites, about 20 years old.

Three missing after cycle trip

GORMAN (AP) — Ventura County sheriff's deputies were to continue searching today for a Huntington Beach man and his two sons who failed to return as scheduled from a motorcycle trip.

Deputies said Sunday night they had turned up no signs of Jack Ashby, 49, or his sons, Mark, 15, and Skip, 17.

Two Claremont meetings off

The Claremont school board and the Claremont Parks and Recreation Commission have canceled their regular meetings scheduled for tonight.

The school board regularly meets the third Monday at 8 p.m. at the Education Center. Its next regular meeting will be Tuesday, Sept. 7, because Monday, Sept. 6 is a holiday.

The Parks and Recreation Commission which usually meets the third Monday each month at 7:30 p.m. will hold its next meeting Sept. 20.

Work ethic talk is U Club topic

Paul A. Albrecht, dean of the Claremont Graduate School, will speak to the University Club of Claremont on "Erosion of the Work Ethic" Tuesday noon at Griswold's.

Albrecht is a former director of communication projects, University of Chicago, and professor of psychology, Claremont Men's College and Claremont Graduate School.

Bilking investors of $4.5 million

Chinoan one of six indicted

A 30-year-old Chino man is one of six persons indicted by the Los Angeles County Grand Jury and charged with bilking $4.5 million from investors in a "do-it-in-your-own-home" manufacturing scheme.

Patrick Knutzen of Chino was one of four salesmen for Automated Industries International of Woodland Hills who were indicted on conspiracy and grand theft charges.

According to Dist. Atty. John Van de Kamp, investors across the nation were bilked by the firm which allegedly solicited investors to send in from $3,900 to $7,900 for the purpose of obtaining equipment and training for the production of polyurethane products at home.

The products, Van de Kamp said, were to be sold to Automated for resale to major retailers, but prosecutors allege that the firm's only profits came from payments made by investors.

Named in a count of conspiracy and 20 counts of grand theft were Jerry Cox, 40, of Northridge, and Richard Nuckolls, 38, of Glendale, who jointly operated the firm.

Young Compton girl killed

A 12-year-old Compton girl was killed when a 1,000-pound boulder fell on her Saturday in the San Gabriel Mountains, sheriff's deputies said.

Barbara Fabela was pronounced dead at the scene east of Highway 39, north of Azusa.

Deputies reported the girl was sitting on the boulder when it suddenly became loose, pitching her forward and falling on top of her. She died of a broken neck, according to the Coroner's office.

Friends and relatives of the victim attempted to lift the boulder off the girl, but failed. It took several U.S. Forest Service trucks and seven forestry patrolmen to lift the rock.

Progress Bulletin Opinion

Pomona, California ■ Monday, August 16, 1976

Business profits? No, only costs

One business magazine recently observed that as much of the public sees it, there are three kinds of corporate profits: excessive, windfall and obscene.

In one famous public opinion survey, most people guessed that the average manufacturer makes 33 cents on each dollar of sales. The actual figure, in 1975, was 4.4 cents on each sales dollar.

Even at the college level, there is a similarly distorted idea about profits. A poll taken at 57 U.S. colleges last year found that students estimated the profit margin of large corporations to be an average of 45 per cent and that they regarded a profit of 25 per cent as fair. Most companies would be thrilled to earn half that lower figure.

In view of these misconceptions, it is interesting to see what a large corporation actually does with its revenues, and what better example than one that is a member of an industry everybody knows is enjoying "obscene" profits.

Continental Oil Company (Conoco), the nation's ninth largest oil firm, reported revenues of slightly over $7.6 billion in 1975 — more than the total budgets of many countries. In a recent article in a company publication, it broke down precisely what happened to all that money.

By far the greatest amount, a whopping $5.3 billion, went for operating expenses, including $715.3 million for employee wages, salaries and benefits; $1.5 billion went for taxes; $285.5 million for depreciation, depletion and amortization; $94.3 million for interest and debt expenses; $74.4 million for dry holes (unsuccessful wells), and $63.7 million for other expenses.

What was left after all costs and taxes was the company's net income or profit — $330.9 million, or 4.3 cents of each revenue dollar. Expressed another way, it took more than 23 revenue dollars to produce each dollar of net income (profit) in 1975.

Part of that net income — $102.4 million, or 1.3 cents — was paid to shareholders as dividends. The remainder — $228.5 million, or three cents — was reinvested in the business.

In Conoco's case, it took some $65,700 of investment in property, plant and equipment to support each job in the company in 1975. This compares with an average for all corporations of about $43,000 per job.

Ironically, a good part of the blame for public misunderstanding of the role of profits in the nation's economic structure can be placed at the door of businessmen themselves. According to Peter Drucker, the noted educator, author and professor of social science at Claremont Graduate School, businessmen who complain so loudly about economic illiteracy are themselves the worst offenders.

These businessmen owe it to themselves and to society to hammer home that there is no such thing as "profits," says Drucker. There are only "costs": costs of doing business and staying in business; costs of labor and raw materials and capital; costs of today's jobs and tomorrow's jobs and pensions.

Furthermore, he says, there is no conflict between "profit" and "social responsibility." It is not the business that earns a profit adequate to meet the costs of today and the risks of tomorrow that "rips off" society. It is the business that fails to do so.

Speaking of tomorrow's needs, the U.S. Department of Labor estimates that the nation will require an average of 72,000 new jobs a week over the next decade to provide work for people entering the labor market for the first time, for workers displaced by machines and new technologies and to bring the unemployment rate down to 4 per cent by 1985.

Obviously, no matter what they are called, only the profits generated by U.S. industry will be able to meet that challenge.

Think on these things

It pays to be able to laugh at oneself . . . for being too serious about too many things can cause a case of poorness . . . and where there's a poorly, there's very little joy . . . very little opportunity to witness a happiness.

When we can get around to laughing about those problems that want to hang on . . . it frets the thinking somehow to figure out a way to cut loose from craggy situations . . . and saves an awful lot of wear and tear on the nerves and ego . . . in addition to sidestepping some of those scoffers who would rather laugh at you than with you . . . So be the first to laugh at yourself and take the wind out of trouble that should have been deflated long ago.

Conserving water, energy

Dear Editor:

Both editorials on Monday, Aug. 9, raise major issues about our water supply: The price of energy and water quality.

We applaud the Progress Bulletin for conveying to the community the anticipated high cost of energy, for this is becoming more of a factor in the cost of our water.

The Pomona Valley is becoming more dependent on water supplies imported from great distances. This import supply, brought hundreds of miles from the Colorado River or Northern California, is a lifeline during these days of dry weather which are taxing our local underground supply.

And in the Diamond Bar, Walnut and Rowland areas, without imported water we could have little or no population, since there is little or no underground water to supply the communities.

The cost of transporting this water will increase by at least 10 times in 1983, when new contracts must be negotiated for energy supplies to run pumps on the import supply lines.

Additionally, the expense of operating pumps on our local wells or regional water pipelines goes up as the cost of energy rises.

So, when you turn on the tap, you are pouring out both water and energy. This is one principal reason why we urge citizens to be water wise — conserving water conserves energy.

Water quality figures in this picture too. Not only does the hard water we have here cause deterioration of washing machines and clothing, but also of all water-using appliances. Additionally, lime buildup in water heaters results in longer time spans to heat a tankful of water — thus wasting energy.

The question of water quality, not only in terms of hardness but also in terms of nitrate content, color, taste and odor, and other aesthetic values, has already become a costly and difficult problem in the Pomona Valley. We are working with local water utilities to meet very tough state and federal standards on water quality — but our efforts will require improvements in the import water supply system.

In the coming months, both water quality and energy considerations will be among our first thoughts as we work toward insuring an adequate imported water supply in this area. While we do our part, we urge the Progress Bulletin to continue the public service of informing citizens about energy costs, water problems, and water conservation. We also urge your readers to do their own part to conserve water and save energy.

Anyone who wants to know ways to conserve water can call or write for a free booklet. We will also provide speakers to clubs, church groups and community organizations. Just contact the Public Information Officer, Pomona Valley Municipal Water District, 173 W. McKinley Ave., Pomona 91768, (714) 623-6681.

Communists pamper athletes

WASHINGTON — Confidential intelligence reports explain how the athletes from the communist bloc made such a spectacular showing at the recent Olympics.

The documents claim that communist countries have been force-training athletes for the Olympics since at least 1960. The star performers not only are subsidized but are pampered with luxuries in flagrant violation of Olympic rules, the documents allege.

This supports the frequent charge that communist governments develop professional athletes to compete against amateurs. One intelligence report quotes a past defector from the Cuban gymnastics team, Zulema Bregado Gutierrez, as stating: "All the athletes are professionals since athletics is their main employment."

She explained that Cuban athletes draw no salary but "receive other privileges which are tantamount to salary." She cited "free room and board and clothing." They get "much better food," and clothing "of the best materials available in Cuba," she said. These special advantages, she told U.S. intelligence men, "are not available to the rest of the population."

Another Cuban defector, Hector Rodriguez Cordoso, told about being sent to Russia to study physical education. Summarizes an intelligence report:

"For a classless society, Rodriguez said, Soviet athletes not only enjoy special class privileges, but they are actually segregated into categories according to their performance in competition."

"Most Soviet athletes who have won medals in competition of world significance, such as the Olympic Games, rank as first class athletes and receive a monthly stipend of 400 rubles in addition to other privileges such as automobiles, housing and the opportunity to travel abroad."

"For every new world record a Soviet athlete sets," continues the intelligence report, "he receives a bonus of 1,000 rubles and other benefits." The document adds that lesser athletes also "receive considerable recognition, monetary and otherwise, above and beyond what an ordinary worker would receive in the Soviet Union."

According to the document, "Rodriguez was emphatic in stating that the Soviet athletes with whom he came in contact made no secret of the fact that their efforts to excel were spurred primarily by the promise of material gain."

For communist athletes, the political indoctrination is as intensive as the physical training. The Cuban gymnast, Zulema Bregado, reported that "at least 30 minutes of political indoctrination is mandatory before every daily training session." Thereafter, she was required to train for four hours "every day of the week except Sunday, year round."

The athletes are carefully coached on how to react at the Olympics. States an intelligence document: "The Cubans make a special effort to orient their athletes so that once they come in contact with foreigners, they have a preconceived party line which they are to use."

"Every effort made by the members of the team, individually and collectively is oriented to put the communist regime of Cuba under the most favorable light. For this reason, the Cuban athletes are considered one of the best means of conveying that message."

Some of these confidential documents date back to the 1960s. Yet they accurately forecast the behavior of the Cuban athletes who performed at the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

The indefatigable Cuban runner, Albert Juantorena, dutifully dedicated his racing triumphs to Fidel Castro and the revolution. The formidable Teofilo Stevenson, the gold-medal heavyweight boxer, also always said exactly what Castro would want to hear.

Numbers key to Soviet success

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — The basic danger of the Soviet arms buildup is not the number of their weapons, nuclear or conventional. Nor is it the size of their warheads, firepower of their navy or the rapidly increasing number of Soviet tanks. And it's not the billions the Russians are pouring, rather inefficiently, into military expansion.

The major concern here is growing evidence of increasing effectiveness of Soviet military research and development, and their capability for translating technological breakthroughs into working hardware.

The Soviet application of new ideas is not limited to weapons systems but includes also imaginative military strategy and tactics, if American observers are reading Soviet military data correctly.

All this seems strange when one studies the sloppy inefficiency of Russia's civilian industrial system and its apparent inability to translate theory into practice within reasonable periods of time.

The United States has been secure in the past, regardless of the size of the Russian buildup, in the knowledge of our technological advantage: the accuracy of our missiles, both conventional and nuclear; the efficiency and reliability of our electronic equipment; the superiority of our computers which are the heart and soul of much of our weaponry, and the wide range of our research.

The evidence now in suggests that this margin of U.S. scientific and technological advantage is disappearing. The evidence is equally clear that this is not because of a superiority in Russian science or efficiency in military production technology that surpasses ours.

The evidence rather is that the inefficiency which pervades Soviet industry carries over into military technology as well.

The data collected here so far seems to indicate that Soviet progress is by sheer weight of technical manpower. The Russians apparently pour scientists and technicians into priority military projects in such numbers, and cover such a range of options, that breakthroughs come from the overwhelming mass of work done in laboratories and testing sites.

This is not to downgrade the Soviet Union's topflight theoretical scientists. Some are among the more brilliant in their fields and can compete with the best in the West. The Russian problem historically, however, has not been theory but in application of theory to practical problems. The Soviet Union is strong in computer theory, for example, but weak in the production of advanced computers.

The net result — though the Russians are now clearly abreast or in front of us in a number of fields, is that we are still well ahead . . . but perhaps not for long.

One note to cheer: it is far easier for a nation technologically behind to catch up than it is to take the lead. However tight the security, the nation that is behind inevitably has access to much of the modern technology of the leader — through scientific publications, commercial applications and patent application records. The nation that's behind, having this access, can divert its research to new possibilities.

Just in jest

As the old saying goes, "Where there's a will there's a way." But in this complicated day and age, where there's a will the really smart beneficiary had also better hire himself a good lawyer if he expects to get his way. In fact, the truth of the matter is that where there's a will, more often than not, there will usually be three or four smart lawyers getting in the way.

Bill hijacking widely rampant

By EARL G. WATERS

Lobbyists in Sacramento are going bananas in their attempts to keep track of pending legislation. The hocus-pocus indulged in by the lawmakers as they scramble frantically to gain passage of their pet theories in these final days of the session surpasses anything ever seen. The carefully thought out rules governing the legislative process are suspended, ignored, evaded and bypassed. Proposals which were killed in one house suddenly spring to life in reincarnated form as bills are hijacked right and left.

Take the case of SB 1750 by Senator Peter Behr. It was a grandiose plan to require home insulation estimated to increase building costs for new homes as much as $4,000. Defeated in the Senate in June, Behr promptly amended it into SB 1748. The latter measure had passed the Senate as a bill relating to the healing arts. In its new form in the Assembly it now contains the identical provisions of SB 1750. Thus, by hijacking one of his own bills, Behr is seeking to thwart the Senate's decision.

Or look at AB 499. As introduced by Assemblyman Gordon Duffy in January 1975 it was a one page bill aimed at preventing "lobbying" behind the public view on matters pending before the Public Utilities Commission. After some minor amendments it passed the Assembly. But on May 20 of this year it was hijacked by Assemblyman Charles Warren and amended into a 22 page proposal. All that remains of the original bill is the number. The new provisions would have created a consumer action group to lobby the PUC, financed with takeouts on utility bills.

Far from being isolated cases the two examples are typical of the misguided "gamesmanship" being practiced by the legislators. Longtime observers, while conceding that an occasional bill hijacking is nothing new, say that they have never before seen anything as widely rampant as the current situation.

Obviously it has gotten out of hand when so mild a mannered person as Senator Al Rodda, in the Legislature since 1958, is provoked into anger. Reacting to the flagrant hijacking of AB 499, Rodda exploded into action when the bill was presented to the Senate Public Utilities Committee. "This is nothing but a hijacked bill," he said. "It never was considered by the Assembly. If for no other reason that's enough for me to vote against it." The bill failed to get committee approval.

If that were the fate of all such bills which seek to escape the due process of legislation the practice would create no real problems. It would simply be one of careful monitoring to catch such ploys. But, for the most part, the hijacked bills go sailing through without question, or if raised, the challenges are ignored.

Worse, according to the lobbyists, the continuous two year sessions have made it impossible to kill proposals. As in the case of SB 1750, even after defeat by one house, the measure gained new life.

"It's like a hydra headed monster," one lobbyist observed. "You kill a bill in one committee and the next thing you know it has popped up in six different bills in other places. There is just no way to keep track of what is happening."

The Constitution requires that bills will not be acted upon until 31 days after being introduced. The intent is to give the public adequate notice of proposed laws. Other provisions require bills to be considered by both houses. But the hijacking enables these requirements to be escaped. Bills which seem innocuous at introduction, and are forgotten, suddenly become major legislative proposals at the last minute.

If the professional lobbyists who are expert at following legislation and work full time at watchdogging the proposals can't know what is going on, what chance has the public of being alerted? The only judgment which can be made is that the lawmakers are making a farce of the entire legislative process.

The proper address speeds things up

Several weeks ago I wrote to the Detroit Board of Health asking the amount of the fee for a copy of my birth certificate so I could send a check.

I enclosed a stamped, self-addressed envelope, but have had no reply. It is important that I secure the document.

Could you find out the cost for me and also verify that the Board of Health is the correct issuing agency? — Mrs. E.V., San Dimas.

The fee is $2. You should write to the Vital Records Section, Department of Public Health, 3500 N. Logan St., Lansing, Mich. 48914.

I sent $4.60 to QIC in San Francisco for printing materials and postage so that I could "join the big $$$-Makers" with a membership in the Helping Hand Club.

That was early last month. I still have not received the materials. — F.S., Pomona.

Although you received your materials after we wrote to QIC, you described them as "kind of a chain letter." QIC claims just the opposite in its mail advertising.

The firm took 2½ months to answer our inquiry.

Here is a letter I received from Columbia Research Corp. offering a three-day holiday for two in Las Vegas if I only send $15.95.

The wife and I got stuck before in the Market Development Corp. of Ohio's Las Vegas program.

We sent our money to Market Development's Ohio office and received a letter saying our reservations would be made. They never arrived.

I called Ohio a week before we planned on leaving. The telephone operators didn't have a company by that name listed.

We ended up by going to Utah and on to Reno and Las Vegas at our own expense.

At a hotel the girl at the counter said she had worked there 15 years and never heard of Market Development Corp.

We pulled out of Las Vegas that same night and drove straight through to the good city of Pomona. — C.V., Pomona.

We received a letter from Columbia Research Corp. a couple of weeks ago. It seems as though I read in your column recently that there had been an injunction against these people. We're sending their literature to you as proof that they're still sending it out.

Naturally, we have no intention of taking advantage of this "fabulous" offer for $15.95. — Mrs. J.O., Chino.

The California Attorney General's Office has obtained a preliminary injunction against Columbia Research and is trying for a permanent injunction on grounds of false and misleading advertising. Like C.V., it identifies Columbia Research with the former Market Development Co.

Ann Landers

An exciting misfortune

Dear Ann: I'm 60, widowed two years ago, and friends say I am attractive, youthful-looking and quite sexy. Several months ago, I visited my sister who lives in a beautiful high-rise in another city.

One evening about 10:30 p.m. the elevator got stuck. Only one other person was with me — a very good-looking man. The lights went off and I was terrified. He said, "Don't worry, we're going to be all right. Remain calm. Let's sit on the floor and get comfortable."

He rang the emergency button and soon we heard voices which gave us reassurance. Finally the chief engineer announced it would be at least two hours before they could get us out of there. He told us we were in no danger.

We talked in a marvelously intimate manner about everything under the sun. It was the most wonderful conversation I have ever had with anyone, so honest and open. After a while he leaned over and kissed my cheek, then my lips. I felt as if I were in paradise for those two golden hours.

When we were finally released I was sad. We parted with a handshake and went our separate ways. I extended my visit another week, hoping to catch a glimpse of that beautiful married man who had changed my life. No luck, so I flew home.

I've heard it said the reaction of a deep emotional experience sets in later, and it certainly did. I've been roaming my house like a caged tiger. In three weeks I've lost 10 pounds, which I could ill afford. I've become depressed.

Can it be I truly loved that man in the elevator? It all seems so silly I wouldn't dare discuss it with anyone. What do you say, Ann? — Mood Indigo

Dear Indy: What you experienced was the excitement of gut-level communication, the basis for a meaningful relationship.

Your present state of depression is the letdown following the "gift" in the lift. Make it a plus instead of a minus, dear. Now that you know you are capable of such a relationship, keep your eye open for another. But before you get physical, make sure the man isn't married.

Dear Ann Landers: Most jewelers are trustworthy, but please warn your readers to protect themselves against the few high-binders. I entrusted two fine diamonds for resetting to a jeweler who returned one diamond with a poor-quality seven-faceted surface and another with a carbon spot. When I protested, he held his ground and I was unable to prove he had pulled a switch.

If I had had those diamonds appraised and insured I would not have been so shamefully cheated. — My Fault But Still Burning

Dear Burn: Thanks for the short course, lovey. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a friend who bugs me constantly about my hair and is forever chasing me with a pair of scissors. She says if I cut off about one-fourth of an inch, it will grow faster. True or false? — Delilah

Dear Del: When I read your letter, Brian, my hairdresser, was actually trimming MY hair, so I asked him. He said, "Hair grows from the scalp. Cutting off the ends, particularly if they are dry, will make hair healthier, but it will not make it grow any faster." So tell "Butch" to buzz off.

Traveling is a tour-de-force

One of the recent phenomena of our recently affluent society is that are called "adventure tours," packaged journeys for the travel-jaded seeking some new excitement on the plane-and-ship rounds of the four corners of the earth. (Corners of the earth?)

In the days of my years, travel agents booked you a comfortable, conventional tour of London, Paris, Munich, Florence, Rome and Athens, on which you took photographs of the Tower of London, Notre Dame Cathedral, Ponte Vecchio and the Parthenon, suffered the Australian quick-step, had your luggage stolen and ran out of money. It was much like staying at home, except you didn't have all those slides to bore your friends with when you got back.

The adventure tour eschews the traditional tourist trail. The travel agent draws together a group of people who all want to try the same whimsical, unusual and possibly dangerous activities. He makes all the arrangements and all you have to do is sign your traveler's checks. For anyone with a three-month vacation and $10,000 lying idle in his checking account, the trips are the ideal rebuttal to conventional travel.

More than 100 adventure tour packagers now offer trips ranging from mountain climbing in the Himalayas to nude swimming in the Caribbean. (Some trip.) For a proper fee you can land at Antarctica and photograph penguins, fight a bull in Spain, or pan for gold in the Andes. There are canoe expeditions down the Amazon, astronomy tours to Australia to see an eclipse in October, elephant rides in the jungles of Ceylon, and ghost hunts through English castles.

The key to these trips (Why do I keep tripping over that word?) is to find a group of people with compatible interests. Travel agents will arrange journeys for bridge enthusiasts, gourmets who eat their way around the globe, stamp collectors, bird watchers and music lovers.

(The L.A. Philharmonic will make a concert tour of the Mediterranean next spring.) But you can't mix Afghan-knitting little old ladies with a loungeful of whiskey-drinking poker buffs; you shouldn't send a group of ministers off with a gaggle of tired businessmen touring the belly-dancing fleshpots of the Middle East. (Or maybe you SHOULD.)

But there are plenty of adventure tours to go around and apparently enough people to go around on them. Some 80 true believers are off with Guru Alice Christiansen for five weeks of meditating in houseboats in Kashmir. The Capers 400 Club of Los Angeles will take you to cocktails with Prince Aurengzeb of Swat. Lars-Eric Lindblad offers a cruise to the Arctic Ocean and houseboat trips in New Guinea.

The ultimate in adventure tours has not yet been booked — a voyage to Mars. You'd probably have to go standby.

Dr. Lamb

Kick myths about workouts

DEAR DR. LAMB — We are going to start football practice early this year to get in shape for the season. Our coach last year always tried to get us to drink lots of water, even during the practice sessions. He was a nut on it. My dad played football when he was young and they all resisted drinking water as they got them in shape faster.

Also I would like to know if it would help to take salt pills. I understand that a person loses lots of salt when he is working out.

DEAR READER — You have got the whole thing backwards. If you and your teammates follow the ideas you suggest you will be in great danger of having a heat stroke.

The body cools itself with the evaporation of water on the surface of the skin. To avoid complications from heat stress you must drink lots of water. Your coach was right.

There was an old idea that restricting water would help, but that is wrong. Weigh yourself before and after workouts and keep track of your weight. Drink enough water and fluids to be sure your body weight doesn't change much. You can allow for loss of fat if you happen to have fat to work off. Otherwise the weight will tell you if you are losing too much water. The normal body weight is more than half water. When the water is depleted the body is not healthy. It is dehydrated.

Salt tablets usually cause more harm than good. Increasing the salt intake is only useful to prevent muscle cramps that occur from heat, stress and loss of salt. If you take lots of salt and don't keep your fluid intake high enough you'll increase the chances of having a heat stroke. Just add salt to your food. That plus the amount naturally in your food is enough. Fortified skim milk is a good drink as it contains the same amount of salt that your body is supposed to have.

Heat stroke is a serious condition. It causes a number of deaths each year. Only a small number of these occur with athletes and laborers. Many more occur in older people or those who are ill. A prolonged heat wave of several days taxes the heat regulating system of the body for those who do not have air conditioning. Moist heat is particularly bad as the body cannot cool itself adequately by evaporation.

Heat stroke is said to occur in people with a temperature of 106 degrees F., a flushed dry skin with no sweating and loss of consciousness. Those classic signs are late signs. In many people the stroke can and does start before sweating stops. When young athletes start having a throbbing in the temples and the body temperature is 104 degrees F. it is time to take measures to cool the body.

There are three main groups of disorders from heat: the heat cramps, usually corrected with improved salt intake; heat exhaustion, which is also a low salt problem and is not associated with a high body temperature; and a heat stroke. I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-12, Heat Stress: Cramps, Exhaustion, Stroke for more information. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

Meanwhile, I would suggest that you begin practice only after 4:00 p.m. and that you avoid pads and heavy clothing for the first week of practice.

Start play unhonorably

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Jim: "The play from dummy at trick one doesn't often make much difference, but there are times when it is crucial."

Oswald: "South covered West's queen of spades with dummy's king. East won with the ace and, after long thought, shifted to the queen of diamonds, whereupon the defense added three diamond tricks to the spade trick already in the bank. South consoled himself for his poor play by remarking that he could not make the hand in any event, but he was wrong there also."

Jim: "Assuming South ducked the spade lead, there is no chance that East would put up his ace. South would ruff the second spade and draw trumps with two leads to leave one trump in dummy. Then he would ruff dummy's last spade and start on clubs. East would show out on the third club, but South would lead the last club and discard a diamond from his hand. West would be in and would have to lead a diamond to establish South's king or give South a ruff and discard."

Ask the Jacobys

We have had so many questions about point count that we will answer them in this and our next several articles.

To start with, point count is basically a method of hand valuation. High cards are valued:

Ace-4, king-3, queen-2, and jack-1. Thus, there are 10 high-card points in each suit and 40 high-card points in the pack.

Cher's taxes $465 a week

Conjecture goes on as to why Napoleon posed for that famous painting with his hand tucked inside his coat. One theorist insists he wanted to camouflage his bulging midsection. A fair trencherman was Napoleon. Not a gourmet, exactly, not that fancy. But he put in a lot of hours at the dinner table. And the time of day or night didn't matter, either. His cook had a standing order to keep at least two roast chickens handy for him the clock around.

Do you realize that just the taxes alone on Cher's house in Southern California run $465 a week? Bob Hope's taxes on three houses add up to $430 a week. And Johnny Carson's household taxes go $328 a week.

LITTER

Q: "Louie, let's see you come up with a bright idea to keep the national parks free of litter."

A: Nothing to it. Put out a batch of concrete garbage cans shaped like bears with open mouths. Rig them electronically so whenever anything is tossed into those mouths, they play back tape recordings that say: "That tasted great! Find me something else to eat." But it's not my idea. Such has been done in a few small parks. Report it is works to keep the grounds perfectly clean.

Q: "If you kill your mother, it's matricide. Your father, patricide. Your brother, fratricide. Your sister, sororicide. What's it called, you kill your wife?"

A: Uxoricide.

TV: Dream or nightmare?

"Television, American Dream or Nightmare?" is debated by Sen. John Pastore (D-R.I.), chairman of the Senate subcommittee on communications, and Sander Vanocur, chief television critic of the Washington Post. Their remarks are excerpted from the National Town Meeting held each Wednesday at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

SEN. PASTORE
With all its faults, I like television. Will you ever forget in 1969 when Neil Armstrong was coming down that ladder to put his foot on the moon? We all held our breaths. And again when the Viking landed on Mars. And two Sundays ago, I saw the Boston Pops under the leadership of Arthur Fiedler and there was Roberta Peters and there was Robert Merrill. Now, that's fulfillment of the American dream. That's where television has played an aesthetic, edifying function in our daily lives.

SEN. JOHN PASTORE
But in 1960, in one week, the public was fed 144 murders, 13 kidnappings and I don't know how many tortures. And that was television at its worst. So it all depends on what you're looking at. It all depends on the kinds of programs they give us. In discussing whether or not television is a fulfillment of the American dream or a nightmare, I think we have to analyze whose responsibility it is.

relationship was between violence on television and behavior of children. In 1972, the report (showed) the causal relationship between televised violence and anti-social behavior is sufficient to warrant appropriate remedial action. As long as I'm chairman of the communications committee, my voice is going to be heard and they're going to clean up the garbage.

ment control. It is sponsored to a certain extent like the BBC is by a fee system on television sets. And that system reflects — and it's in its charter — the cultural values of the nation. Even if you can't understand the language, look at the listings and what you see on both channels to understand what you're missing in America.

I think the problem we have in this country with television is that commercial television really has no competition. The three networks do not compete with each other. They say they do. And every year one will lead the other in the ratings. But they are all turning over — in the words of Larry Gelbart, who formerly produced and wrote M*A*S*H — the same compost heap. I don't use that word entirely in a derogatory manner because you have to have compost to make things grow.

I think television is a good deal better than it's been in the past. But I think it is no way near becoming the dream that we wish it to be because it is not challenged. I think the only way television is going to change is if we establish in this country alternative forms, whether that's pay, cable or strengthening public broadcasting. They have the means now through cable, through satellites, to bring more forms of television into the household. So television will change. I do not know if it will change for the better. But it's going to change and if alternate forms change, I think commercial television will have to change simply to meet the competition.

About a month ago, J. Walter Thompson, the world's largest advertising agency, showed the results of a study, it was a very tentative one, in which two of ten consumers were thinking of switching.

Is the U.S. public ready for pirates?

By Dick Kleiner
HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Hollywood will closely watch the box-office record of "The Swashbuckler," to see if it's time for pirate films to make a comeback.

James Goldstone, who directed the film, thinks this is the perfect time. He believes it will attract viewers of all ages for different reasons.

Adults, he says, remember the pirate films of their youth and will want to see a new one. Younger audiences will be attracted by the message inherent in the pirate film format.

"Pirate films," Goldstone says, "have always been anti-establishment — the heroes are fighting the government, which is always shown to be corrupt and evil."

"The Swashbuckler," is probably the first film in which a ship gets star billing. Besides Robert Shaw, Genevieve Bujold, James Earl Jones and Beau Bridges, the credits read: "and The Golden Hind as The Blarney Cock."

The Golden Hind is an authentic replica of Sir Francis Drake's pirate ship, and well deserves its billing.

Goldstone says the picture is an attempt to do a swashbuckling pirate film as though they never stopped making them, even though there hasn't been a real pirate epic for nearly 40 years. He feels "The Swashbuckler" is how it would be done if they had continued making them.

Thus, it has a modern flavor although the theme and the content are strictly out of the past. You could call it an old-fashioned, new-fangled picture.

In 1969, we appropriated a million dollars at my behest in order to have anthropologists, psychiatrists, psychologists and sociologists study what the
